MCNARY-HAUGEN BILL IS DEFEATED

SEEK TO LINK YOUNG SLAYERS IN NEW CRIMES

Taxicab Driver in Chicago
Identifies Leopold and Loeb
As His Assaulters

INDICTMENT ASKED

Both Murder and Kidnaping
Bills to be Requested of Grand Jury

Chicago, June 3. (By the A. P.)—A declaration that the bullet which killed Freeman L. Tracy, a student, on January 25 last, fits one of the pistols found in the room of Nathan Leopold, who with Richard Loeb, both sons of millionaires, have confessed the killing of Robert Franks, 13, was made by Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, today.

The physician's statement is the first clue that the authorities have found to connect the kidnapers with the Tracy murder, one of the most mysterious slayings which ever confronted the police.

Leopold and Loeb, confessed kidnapers and slayers of young Franks, from whose father they attempted to extort a ransom of $10,000, were identified as the attackers who maimed Charles Ream by an operation of mutilation only five days after the killing of Tracy.

Chicago, June 3. (By the A. P.)—States attorneys prepared today to submit to the grand jury the confessions of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, millionaire sons and University students, admitted kidnapers and slayers of 13-year-old Robert Franks, while investigators sought any connection by them with the unsolved killing of Freeman Louis Tracy, also a student, and a mutilating attack last fall on Charles Ream, taxicab chauffeur.

Ream has declared the youths held in the county jail in custody of the Cook county sheriff by court order, are the assailants who kidnaped him in an automobile, drugged and threw him out of the machine after a mutilation operation. Taken to the states attorney's office by newspaper men, Ream shouted: "It's them! It's them!" and fainted, when he saw the boys later he was positive in his identification.

The body of Tracy, a bullet through the temple, was found five days before the attack on Ream.

Both in jail

The youthful kidnapers-slayers who claimed they killed the Franks boy through a case of adventure and for the $10,000 ransom they demanded of his father, Jacob Franks, spent last night in the county jail that will house them until they are free, removed to the penitentiary or asylum or executed.

States Attorney Robert E. Crowe declared he would have both indicted by tonight. He said he expects to ask indictment for murder and kidnaping for ransom, each a capital crime.

Finding of a letter written to Jacob Franks by the boys in a Michigan Central railroad car in New York has completed the chain of evidence of the state, according to Mr. Crowe, with the exception of a portable typewriter on which notes were written. Divers are searching a park lagoon into which the typewriter was thrown. The promise of States Attorney Crowe that he will seek the death penalty for the crime has not shaken Leopold from the philosophical, contemptuous attitude he has maintained since first taken into custody.

"Death doesn't make any difference," he said. "It is the end. Why, nobody's afraid of death."

He told of tortuous plans he had made to carry out in the event if "they made it too hot for me." One was to take the poison if he was unable "to talk myself out of the mess."

A second plan was detailed after detectives found two automatic pistols in his home. Leopold said he had access to the pistols Friday night when officers were searching his room for the muddy boots he wore when the Franks' boy body was hidden.

Thought of Suicide

"If I had known that Loeb was peaching at the time," he said, "I had killed myself therein the room. Do you recall when I was standing at my desk? I had my hand on my gun. But before I killed myself I'd have put a few policemen out of the way. Yes, I'd have knocked you."

FOREST FIRES MENACING AT CANADA BORDER

St. Paul Man Goes North of
Duluth with $5,000 Relief
Fund For Fight

Duluth, Minn., June 3.—Granted an emergency fund of $5,000 by the state board of relief, G. Cronzet, St. Paul, acting state forester, was in Duluth today en route to that Canadian border country where menacing brush and forest fires threaten to evade scores of fire guards. With two rangers ill, the patrol on the border section was confronted with what Mr. Cronzet termed a "bad fire situation," is badly in need of men, money and supervision, he declared.

The fires are particularly serious in the vicinity of International Falls and Black Duck, said Mr. Cronzet. With the woods extremely dry, he said, there might be disastrous results should heavy winds prevail before rain fell.

BOY DROWNS IN SHEYENNE

Amos Belknap, Five Years
Old, Drowns at Valley City

Valley City, N. D., June 3.—Amos, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Belknap, 104 East Main street, was drowned and Mable, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Peterson, 110 East Main street, narrowly escaped being drowned in the Sheyenne river just back of the Peterson residence.

The two children are believed to have been playing on a wall built beside the river and in some manner that will probably never be known, the Belknap youth fell into the river. His little girl companion, seeing him struggling in the water, is believed to have attempted to assist him and in so doing also dropped off the wall but fortunately fell near a wire to which she clung for some time until her cries attracted the attention of Curtis, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, who rescued the little girl just as she was about to loosen her grasp and fall into the river.

IOWA CHIEF OF 40 AND 8 TO BE AT LEGION MEET

Fargo, N. D., June 3.—Robert Murphy of Iowa, chief de chemin de fer of the 40 and 8, honorary American Legion organization, will speak at the annual grande promenade of the North Dakota grande vulture to be held in Mandan, June 30, at which delegates from 14 vultures in the state meet for a session of business and frolics, according to Art Collar of Fargo, grande correspondent for North Dakota. J. P. Conny of Fargo, is chief de gare of the grande vulture of North Dakota.

A large class of prisoners of war, or "poor goods" will be welcomed during the sessions, announcements state. Officers will be elected and delegates to the national convention of the organization will be chosen during the business meeting. The North Dakota group is reputed to rank high in national circles of the 40 and 8.

Units in North Dakota, of which only one is established in a given county are located now at Fargo, Bismarck, Grand Forks, Mandan, Dickinson, Washburn, Devils Lake, Mayville, Harvey, Carrington, Jamestown, Williston, Mott, Wahpeton and Park River.

BROOKHART IS LEADING WITH GAINS LIKELY

Iowa Radical Senator Has Narrow Lead Over Sweet
With Half of Vote In

CITY VOTE REPORTED

Brookhart Managers See
Steady Increase as Farmer Vote Comes In

IS GAINING

Des Moines, Ia., June 3.—(By the A. P.) United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart was re-nominated by Iowa Republicans in yesterday's primary, in the opinion of a majority of political observers who today based their assertion on returns from two-thirds of the precincts of the state in which the Senator had a lead over Burton Sweet of approximately 12,000.

Des Moines, Ia., June 3.—United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart slowly increased his lead over Burton E. Sweet today as country precincts all over the state reported the result of yesterday's Republican senatorial primary. With approximately one-half of the precincts in the state reported, the Senator had a lead of 7,101 votes over his opponent.

Senator Brookhart's campaign leaders declared the increase represented the beginning of the climb in his advantage they had expected after the bulk of the city voters had been reported while the campaign managers for the former congressman declared they were not yet ready to admit defeat.

The vote in 1,254 precincts out of 2,412 was: Brookhart 112,339; Sweet 105,238.

GET READY FOR NEW FLIGHT

Destroyers to be Stationed in Path of Aviators

Kagoshima, Japan, June 3.—The American aviators lying around the world spent today in rest and tuning up their planes after the strenuous flight from Kushimoto, here yesterday. They hoped to hop off for Shanghai tomorrow.

On this jump of about 500 miles straight across the China sea they will have the aid of a number of American destroyers, if needed. The destroyers have been stationed in line across the sea at intervals of about 60 miles.

AUTO FEES IN N. D. INCREASE

Collections Already Over
$600,000 Reports Show

Automobile license receipts have increased $53,278.45 over last year to date in North Dakota, according to J. P. Tucker, motor vehicle registrar.

With collections for licenses now $641,312.45 Mr. Tucker predicted a heavy increase in motor vehicle fees over 1923 before the year is ended, and a registration of cars far in excess of previous years.

New cars registered in the state for the first five months of 1924 number 5,657, his figures show, as compared to 5,983 cars a year ago, but the total number of registrations, which is 94,186, is an increase over the registrations at this time last year.

New passenger cars delivered this year as compared to 1923 are shown as follows: 1923, January, 109; February, 177; March, 744; April, 507; May, 3,446; June, 1,214; April, 1,812; May, 1,514.

The mild winter caused the sales season to open earlier than usual, it is said, leading Mr. Tucker to predict that the total sales of new cars this year would exceed last year.

REFUSE TO BUY U. S. GOODS

Tokio, June 3.—Several Tokyo stores today are displaying stores which read "No American goods sold here."

A number of the vernacular newspapers assert that the movement to boycott American products, started as a protest against passage of the new American immigration law, including a clause prohibiting entry of Japanese, is spreading ground among the middle and lower classes, despite the efforts of the government to check its spread.

GIRL DIES AT PLAY ON LAWN

Camden, N. J., June 3.—Trying to "make tea" for her favorite doll, six-year-old Stella Pasarella gave up her life when her clothes became ignited from a tiny fire made on the lawn of her home in Dunbarton. Neighbors found the doll still sitting on the lawn, holding an empty tea-cup.

PREMIUMS FOR CREAM SELLING ARE OPPOSED

Dairy Commissioner Believes
Special Inducements Lead
To Lower Prices

COMPARES N. D. PRICES

Opposition to the practice of some creamery companies in other states and cream buyers in offering premiums, such as silver ware, to farmers bringing in the most cream is expressed by W. F. Reynolds, state dairy commissioner. He condemns the system as leading to lower prices for cream and butterfat.

The system is practiced extensively in some states, Mr. Reynolds says, and he has found that in Kansas where various sorts of inducements are made, prices are generally lower than North Dakota. He says, North Dakota, without the premium practice, is ranking among the high in the price paid for dairy products, he says. Explaining his stand in the matter Mr. Reynolds said: "Cream station prices on May 19th as quoted to different towns in different states as compared with North Dakota quotations, and what I believe are some of the reasons why our prices are higher. First, for the past year this department has been working on a cream grading campaign. We have sent out much literature, held many meetings and given many demonstrations and are reliably informed that the quality has been improved a great deal. North Dakota has been practically free of premiums or trade prices. This article is intended to draw the farmers' attention to premiums. You may think it to your disadvantage for me to work against the premiums proposition. After reading this through and giving it thought I believe you will be able to see the situation as I do. Being a dairy farmer myself I am particularly interested in seeing the producers get every cent they possibly can for their butterfat.

The different states quoted the following cream station prices for butterfat during May 1924: There are, however, some exceptions to these prices in different localities.

Many Excise Taxes Go

Another effect that soon will be appreciable is the provision of the new law repealing within 30 days many excise taxes such as those on telegraph and telephone messages, soft drinks, candy, carpets, rugs, trunks and theater admissions of 50 cents or less.

The revision of the income tax rates effected under the new law brings a cut in all such levies. This amounts to 50 percent reduction on amounts above that the normal rate is cut from 8 to 6 percent while the surtax rates are revised on a similar basis.

The new surtax schedule starts with 1 percent on $10,000 and graduates up to 40 percent on $500,000 and over.

A new feature written into the legislation at the recommendation of Secretary Mellon, who initiated the move for tax revision last September provides for an additional reduction of 25 percent on earned incomes up to $10,000 with all incomes of $5,000 and under, classed as earned.

Approval was given by the president to the measure exactly one week to the hour from the time he received it after almost unanimous final action by both house and senate. The president acted after study of a lengthy report made on the bill by the treasury department, and after several conferences with Secretary Mellon, to whose original plan for tax revision he had given his support and endorsement.

Mellon Gets Ready

The signing of the bill was without ceremony. C. Bascom Slemph, the president's secretary, was the only witness.

Immediately upon notification that the bill had been made law, Secretary Mellon began preparations in the treasury for its administration. His first move was an announcement that he would ask congress to waive by resolution statutes making payment of salary to persons nominated for office while congress is in session contingent upon senate confirmation of the nominations. This action will be urged by Mr. Mellon to take care of appointments to the board of appeals, some of which will be made

NEW TAX BILL WILL BE URGED BY PRESIDENT

Coolidge, Signing Present
Congress' Tax Bill, Says It Is Not Sound Policy

REDUCTIONS ARE MADE

25 Per Cent Cut in Income
Taxes for 1923 One of Features of Bill

Washington, June 3. (By the A. P.)—A new federal tax law is by the statute books today but it will have to weather a fight by the administration to obtain a law more to its liking by the next session of Congress to remain there.

President Coolidge issued coincident with his signature of the tax reduction bill yesterday that he would bend all of his energies to obtain passage at the next session to obtain a bill "less political and more economic."

The bill, which decreases tax rates in most instances to the lowest levels since 1917, and which was the basis of the hottest legislative fight at the present session of congress was declared by the president in a 2,500 word statement issued coincident with his approval of the measure, to represent merely "tax reduction, not tax reform."

"The bill does not represent a sound permanent tax policy and in its passage has been subject to unfortunate influence which ought not to control fiscal questions," the executive said. "Still in spite of its obvious defects, its advantages as a temporary relief and a temporary adjustment of business conditions, in view of the uncertainty of a better law within a reasonable time, lead me to believe that the best interests of the country would be subserved if this bill became a law."

To Seek Improvement

"A correction of its defects may be left to the next session of the congress. I trust a bill less political and more truly economic may be passed at that time. To that end I shall bend all my energies."

The legislation as approved by the president reduces the taxes of all most every federal taxpayer and cuts down the federal revenues by an amount estimated at $361,000,000 for the next fiscal year. This reduction, however, will not result in any deficit, according to treasury experts. The principal effect of the new law will not be felt until next year, the 50 percent reductions in income taxes being made applicable to incomes of this year but payable in 1925. Immediate relief, however, is granted every income tax payer as a 25 percent decrease is ordered in the case of income taxes for the current year and now due. Persons who are paying this year's income taxes on the installment plan may cut their second payment, due June 15, by one-half and their other two installments by one-fourth each. Those who already have paid their income taxes in full will get a refund without applying for it.

2 KILLED AS BIG BALLOON IS DESTROYED

U. S. Aviator and Weather
Bureau Representative
Are Found Dead

Belleville, Ill., June 3.—The mangled bodies of Dr. C. LeRoy Meisinger of the United States Weather Bureau, Washington, and Lieut. James P. Healy, who left Scott field yesterday in the Army balloon S-3 for the ninth of a series of test flights, were found near Beemont, Illinois, today.

The balloon had exploded and was destroyed by fire.

Belmont is about 150 miles northwest of Scott field. A watch on Lieut. Healy's body had stopped at 11:15, seven hours after the fatal flight started. Both men were pilots, but Lieut. Healy was in charge of the balloon, while Dr. Meisinger made his observations.

Although Senator LaFollette's resolution was in order today leaders had planned to hold up action on the adjournment proposal pending enactment of the urgent deficiency bill providing funds for executing the bonus law and they were uncertain whether either would be taken up today.

Indications were, however, that there would be sufficient Nonpartisan strength to put the adjournment resolution through the Senate just as there was in the House.

In spite of a cold spring the weather man has accumulated an excess of degrees of temperature, according to the monthly meteorological summary issued by the weather bureau today. The average daily excess of temperature over the normal since January 1 is 1.55 degrees. During May the highest recorded was 81, while the record for the month is 96. The lowest was 26 above while the lowest on record in May is 13 degrees above zero.

There is an accumulated deficiency in moisture of 3.23 degrees since January 1, the record shows. The percentage of sunshine, felt seven percent below normal, being 51 percent of the possible sunshine for the month.

Washington, June 3.—(By the A. P.)—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was defeated today and the last-minute effort of its opponents to put through a less drastic measure also failed.

Rejection of the proposal left members of the House and Senate farm bloc in doubt as to what, if any, farm legislation could be rushed through if Congress adjourns Saturday.

The bill was rejected, 224 to 154.

TO QUIT SATURDAY

Washington, June 3.—Congress will adjourn next Saturday under a House resolution adopted today by the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT IN QUESTION

Washington, June 3.—Sentiment in the Senate against adjournment of Congress next Saturday, as proposed in the concurrent resolution rallied today around the substitute resolution introduced by Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, the Republican insurgent leader, proposing that instead Congress recess until July 7.

The proposal of the Wisconsin Senator was presented yesterday shortly after the house had speedily approved by a vote of 221 to 157 the resolution offered by Rep. Longworth, Republican leader, providing for adjournment at 7 p. m. Saturday.

LaFollette's Idea

Senator LaFollette proposed that Congress reconvene July 7 to take up a specified program of legislation covering agricultural and reclamation relief and the transportation question. He indicated that he was prepared to press these views in a speech on the floor but was said to have received little encouragement in his move from Republican and Democratic leaders with whom he had conferred. Some of his associates believed that there would be no organized effort to delay passage of the concurrent resolution.

Although Senator LaFollette's resolution was in order today leaders had planned to hold up action on the adjournment proposal pending enactment of the urgent deficiency bill providing funds for executing the bonus law and they were uncertain whether either would be taken up today.

Indications were, however, that there would be sufficient Nonpartisan strength to put the adjournment resolution through the Senate just as there was in the House.

AT THE MOVIES

AT THE CAPITOL

Predictions are being made that the screening of Charles Chaplin's own story in "Modern Times" starring Edna Purviance, will stand forth in motion picture history as an epochal event that will exert a strong influence on the present day photodrama.

The theme is a startling one, and made the more so because of the utter simplicity and warmth of feeling that permeates it. It presents a problem dealing with the lives and fundamental of life, commencing with an interesting fashion rather than attempting to solve it.

While the story is of life as studied by Charles Chaplin, it is no wise deals with the life of Chaplin but with the lives of others as seen by him. And as in actual life there is comedy, tragedy, passion, absurdity, melodrama, farce, emotion, cynicism all these Chaplin has combined as ingredients of life in "A Woman of Paris".

THE ELTINGE

The Pola Negri of "Passion" has returned. In the production of "Shadows of Paris", which shows today and tomorrow at the Eltinge theatre, the star once more comes into her own. She is quite her old self as Claire, leader of the Apache bands of the Parisian underworld. Then there is Charles de Roche as her Apache lover, who is called away to war and falsely reported killed; Huntly Gordon as Raoul whom Claire, posing as a Polish war widow, marries; and Adolphe Menjou as Raoul's secretary and friend—all are featured and all give excellent accounts of themselves.

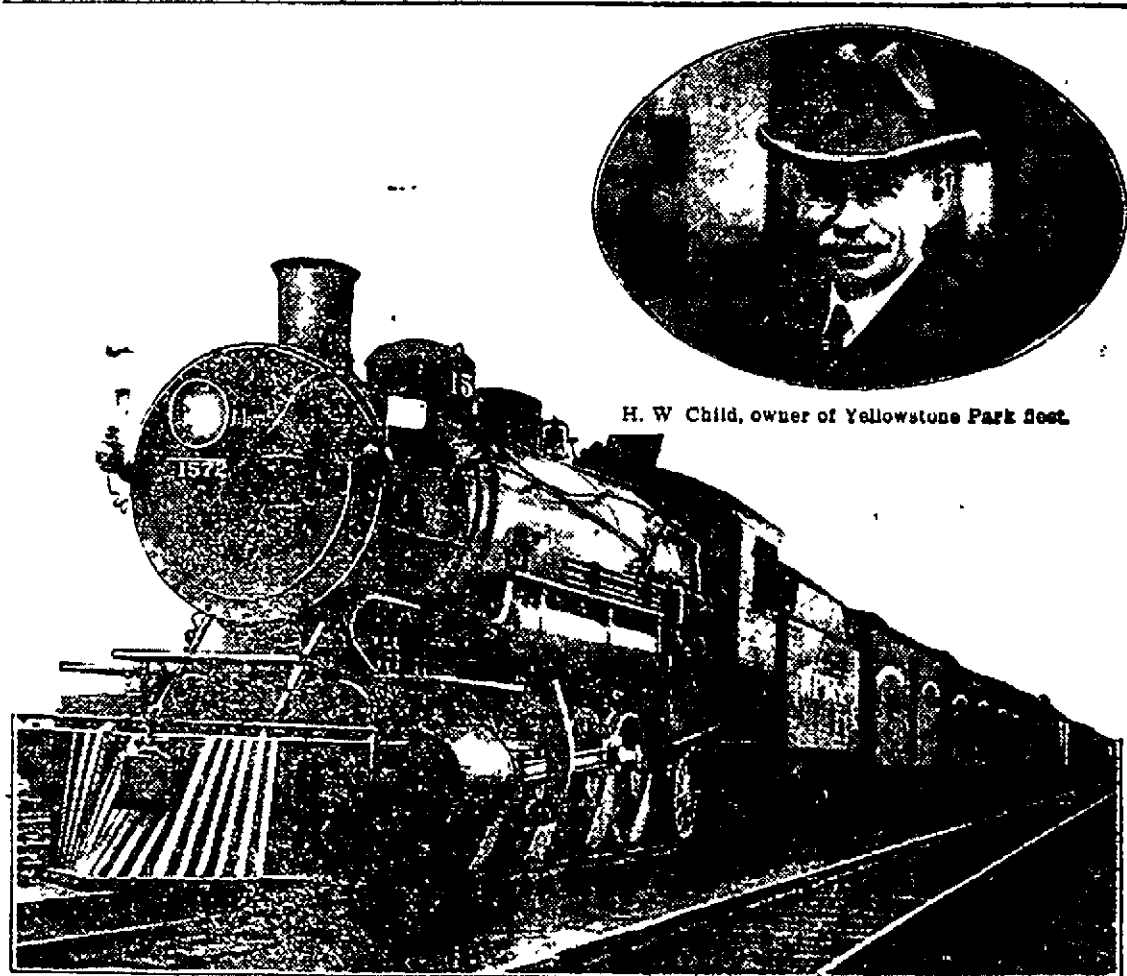

The story is one of the upper and lower world of Paris, the playground of the entire world. It is a colorful and appealing tale, an adaptation of the French play, "Mon Homme", by the author of "Kiki".

Spanish Start Anti-Kissing League

Madrid, June 3.—Kissing is going out of favor among Spaniards. The league against the promiscuous kissing of children, formed some years ago, has decided to extend its efforts and to start a campaign against the kissing prevalent among women when they meet or take leave of each other. The leaders of the movement assert that much hygienic good has been done by the restriction of the seduction of children, and they express the opinion that women generally will welcome a similar measure, for, as they argue, in most instances kissing does not mean friendship.

More Soft Wood Trees Are Now Being Planted

The people of the United States consume twice as much softwood lumber as they do hardwood lumber, according to the New York state college of forestry at Syracuse university. The softwoods are cut off more rapidly because of their better adaptability to man's needs and their lighter weight.

The pines, hemlocks and spruces float easily and this facilitates transportation to the mills. They are hauled by bobsleds or sent by flume or chute to a stream or lake and floated to the mills. Maples, beeches and birches will very often sink, which necessitates artificial means of transportation such as motortrucks, tractors and railroads, an expensive method. Even where such costly transport is required for softwoods the greater value of the product has made lumbering profitable. But with hardwoods this type of logging is too expensive except where the hardwoods are especially fine and the demand is good with a near market.

The dwindling supply of softwood timber is making it more profitable to plant evergreen trees than ever before, says the college. Today many hardwood forests and farm woodlots are being converted to the more valuable softwoods. It often pays on such woodlots to girdle unmerchantable hardwood trees so the undergrowth of softwoods that have been artificially planted or naturally reseeded will not be retarded by the shade of their older hardwoods. By cutting the bark around the hardwood trees, their foliage will disappear and the trees will die, thus allowing enough light to fall upon the young softwoods to give them their natural rate of growth. In the average forest such elimination of hardwoods allows the coniferous or softwood species to take on additional volume of about one-fourth cord annually for twenty-five to thirty years, depending upon their age. This increase in growth will offset the expense of girdling and keep the forest on a profitable basis.

George Meredith Ordered All Manuscripts Burned

George Meredith placed no value whatsoever on the manuscripts of his novels. Once when he said so to Miss Nichol she answered teasingly that it was mock modesty on his part to say such a thing.

"But," she pleaded, "can't I have some of them as keepsakes?" "Yes," he answered carelessly, "take whichever you like."

She selected several of the precious documents—single sheets on which he had written out his short poems. Miss Nichol led Mr. Brooks and me down into the vegetable garden, and there, a black little heap of ashes, lay all that remained of manuscripts worth who knows how much!—From "Forty Years in My Bookshop," by Walter S. Spencer.

Vacation Perils Are Vanishing As Pleasure Seekers Observe Health and Safety Precautions

July, August and September are the months when most people plan to take their vacations, and they are not only the most healthful months in the year, but they are the months which for some years past have shown the greatest decline in mortality. Everyone wants to die happy, but nobody wants to die while enjoying a vacation. Fortunately vacations are not as perilous as they used to be, and by the exercise of a little forethought and prudence the few lurking dangers can usually be avoided.

Summer drownings are not as due to the danger from typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases. Good food, fresh air and good water are three prime requisites of any vacation. Fresh air is usually taken for granted, but one cannot be too careful in assuring himself that the resort selected has a dependably pure water supply and that the food supply is every-thing that it ought to be. Health departments have done good work in improving the standards of milk dealers and it ought to be an easy task to find a place where even the baby will thrive, on the va-can be formerly, in spite of the fact that more persons are exposed to risk. The increased knowledge of swimming, the improved methods of rescue work and a more general understanding of resuscitation methods, probably accounts for the decline. Back in 1914, the mortality tables of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show that ten out of every 100,000 of its industrial policyholders met death by drowning. Last year it ran less than seven. In July, 1921, the company was paying claims at the rate of nine deaths by drowning daily. Last July the average was almost two less. Accidental drowning is still a serious vacation peril, but most deaths from this cause are preventable ones and the exercise of extreme care on the part of both swimmers and non-swimmers cannot be too strongly urged.

The enforcement of better sanitary regulations at summer resorts, particularly as they relate to the water supply and to the disposal of wastes, has tended to reduce the danger from typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases. Good food, fresh air and good water are three prime requisites of any vacation. Fresh air is usually taken for granted, but one cannot be too careful in assuring himself that the resort selected has a dependably pure water supply and that the food supply is every-thing that it ought to be. FARGO MAN IS GIVEN MEDAL

Awarded Vail Medal For Courage in Rescue

Fargo, June 3.—Edward I. Hannah, superintendent of plant for the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company in the North Dakota Division, has been awarded a bronze medal for his initiative and courage in rescuing a small boy from drowning in the James river at Jamestown on November 14, 1923.

The Vail Medal Plan, under which the award was made, is a memorial to the late Theodore N. Vail, pioneer president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. From a memorial fund to which Mrs. Vail was a generous contributor awards are made each year to telephone employees who have rendered heroic and noteworthy public service.

Mr. Hannah was in Jamestown on business and had just crossed a bridge over the James river when he heard the child's scream, followed by a heavy splash. Dashing back to the bridge, he found that a small boy had fallen into the river and was being swept down stream. He flung off his overcoat, quickly waded into the stream, shoulder-deep, lunged for the boy just as he was being carried by, caught him by the hair and towed him to the shore, where the boy's lungs were cleared of water. After wrapping the boy in a heavy coat, Mr. Hannah brought him home.

Twenty-seven years ago June 1, Mr. Hannah started his work for the Northwestern Bell Company at Omaha. There he made a steady advancement, serving as lineman, local wire chief, district wire chief, district plant superintendent, and finally became division superintendent of plant in July, 1913. In 1920, he came to Fargo in his present position.

Six other bronze medals were awarded by the Theodore N. Vail Committee of Award of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company which met at Omaha, Nebr., recently.

MONK ADOPTS HOGS

Republic, Kas., June 3.—Jock, a diminutive monkey, has been a regular inhabitant of a pigsty on the farm of W. H. McClure, near here, for three years. In that time numerous families of pigs have grown to hoghood under Jock's guiding care and have become expert "saddle hogs," with the monkey as chief jockey.

Golf Charts Teach Strokes and Standing Positions

To check the game of experienced golfers or to teach beginners, a set of six charts, printed with directions and illustrations showing correct standing positions, grips and strokes, and other fine points, has been devised. With them, one may read a lesson in golf technique and follow it at the same time. Printed on heavy paper, the charts are to be placed on the floor. Standing over them with club in hand, the player is able to get the proper grip and position and execute the stroke in correct form. The diagrams afford a constant check and means of comparison for accuracy in every detail.

New Theory of Radio Is Advanced

In the opinion of Carl Pfanstiel, a Chicago radio engineer, the wave theory of radio will soon be exploded completely, and the radiant-energy theory take its place in explaining radio phenomena. Mr. Pfanstiel is of the opinion that there is no such thing as "ether" as commonly referred to. He says that what are usually spoken of as radio waves are undoubtedly particles smaller than an electron that are sent flying by an electric current. These particles, it is assumed, bump into each other, thus transmitting energy which is picked up as sound in the receiver. When a stream of radiant energy or particles strikes the antenna, it sets up a very weak current, which is transformed into sound or air waves in the receiving set.

The development of this theory, says Mr. Pfanstiel, has been very rapid and startling, and further investigation of the nature of these particles may explain the mechanism of direct communication and telepathy between minds. Also, through the new principle, wireless transmission of vision may become an accomplished fact.

Serviceable Dandelion Hook

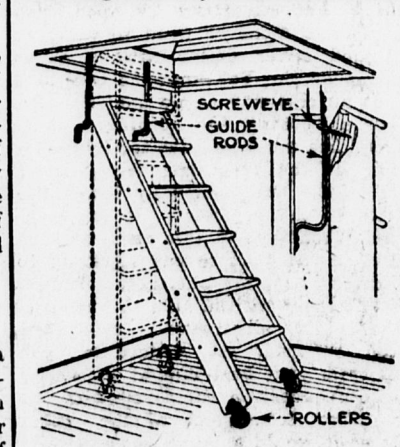

Occasionally the breaking off of a lobe of a hoe renders it unfit for further use and it is then usually thrown away. However, a serviceable tool for the purpose of removing dandelions can easily be made from it. The shank of the broken hoe is straightened in line with the handle, and the blade is cut and filed to the shape shown, a V-shaped notch being cut in the end and filed to a sharp cutting edge. One of the points is cut to form a pulling hook, the throat of which is, of course, dull. A tool of this kind is very handy, as it can be used to cut the dandelions at their stems or pull them out entirely.

Shoes of aluminum with wooden soles are now being used by workmen in German chemical factories.

Portable Garret Step

In bungalows where limited space does not permit built-in garret steps, a "folding" stepladder of the kind shown in the drawing has been found very convenient. It is made of 1 by 5-in. lumber, the risers being set between the sides at such an angle that they are perfectly horizontal when the ladder is pulled away from the wall. Two large screweyes fastened to the top of the ladder are used to hold it on the two vertical guide rods, which are permanently attached to the wall; this arrangement allows the ladder to be raised and lowered to the positions indicated. A couple of casters provided on the feet of the ladder facilitate the work of pulling it out from the wall and pushing it back again.

Can the Skin See, Is Query

That human skin has powers of vision which to a great extent have been lost through years of neglect, is the theory of a French scientist. A series of experiments conducted by him are said to support this belief. The sensitivity of the skin and underlying tissue with its intricate net of nerves is well known, but no one heretofore has supposed them to be capable of picking up light waves in a manner comparable with the process of seeing.

WHEAT MAKES EARLY GAINS

Starts With Rally on Absence of Offerings

Chicago, June 3.—(By the A. P.)—With offerings limited and shorts buying wheat today started with a rally from yesterday's decline. Expected defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill at Washington had no apparent influence on prices, opinions being general that such a result had already been fully taken into account. Black rust warnings reported to have been broadcast from Minneapolis were also virtually ignored. The opening figures ranged from unchanged figures to 3-8 to 1-2 cents higher, with July 1.03 3-4 to 1.04 and September 1.05 7-8 to 1.06 were followed by moderate upturns all around.

Increased offerings especially on the part of houses with southwestern connections brought about a moderate decline in wheat prices today. The close was unsettled, 1/2 to 3/4 cents not lower, July 1.03 1/2 to 1/4 and September 1.05 1/2.

WHY RENTS ARE HIGH

Study of the City of Washington Reveals Some Interesting Facts

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 3.—To understand why rents are so high almost everywhere, there's no city so well worth studying as Washington. It isn't alone that Washington's a typical city, though that's true, too. The main consideration is that, due to congressional control of its affairs, its troubles are public property. Others may conceal theirs. Washington can't.

As a war-time measure, a rent commission "was created in the capital. It didn't prevent terrific rates, but if there hadn't been such a body it's the general opinion that nobody but millionaires could have paid them at all.

Recently an attempt was made to abolish this commission. It was opposed. A congressional investigation followed.

Landlords' Trust
It appeared that originally high prices probably were caused mainly by the city's growth in population without a corresponding increase in building. But since the war, building has been brisk, rents have declined little, if any.

Then was revealed the existence of a landlords' trust—its whole purpose being to keep rents high.

When a new building was finished, the owner, if a trust member, as most of the big landlords were, began slapping mortgage after mortgage on the property. Some properties were mortgaged seven or eight times.

This gave a twofold advantage to the landlord.

He got back the price of his building and more, too—almost at once.

He was able to show to the rent commission a greatly inflated sum on which to claim a return from his tenants at the rate, say, of 6 per cent.

The puzzle is how landlords managed to obtain all these loans. This is a puzzle the congressional investigators have turned over to Atorney General Stone and a grand jury to find the answer, if they can.

Congress' Business
At any rate, through the trust's influence, the landlords did it somehow.

During the investigation, one New York investment company was mentioned which made 32 loans on Washington real estate to a total of $9,000,000 more than the same real estate's last sale prices.

How is all this Congress' business?

Because, explains the rent commission's lawyer, Chapin Brown, 65,000 federal employees have to live in Washington, it's Congress' business to keep them healthy, happy and as prosperous as their incomes will permit, and it can't be done unless they are comfortably housed at reasonable prices.

Of course, the same rule applies to the bulk of every other city's population, though the others can't look to Congress to help them out.

SHIPMENTS ON INCREASE

More Livestock Shipped on N. P. Here in May

An increase in livestock shipments during May on the Missouri River division of the Soo railroad lines reflects a change in the farming industry along the railroad, predicted last winter by S. W. Derrick, superintendent of the road.

Shipments of livestock on the division increased 43 cars in the month of May over the year 1923, a considerable increase. One carload, from Pollock, S. D., just over the line, was said by Mr. Derrick to be one of the finest shipments of cattle he had ever seen.

The increase in May is due to corn feeding of cattle during the winter. Whereas stock shipments formerly were heaviest in the early winter, when they were taken off grass, more farmers are fattening them on corn they raise. The result is a bumper price for cattle.

The boll weevil bug is estimated to cause an annual loss of more than $2,000,000 to growing cotton in the United States.

FORMER RANCH OWNER TELLS EXPERIENCES

Driven Out of North Dakota By Federal Government Indictment, He Says

OPERATED IN BAD LANDS

An indictment for fencing government land—now said not to be unusual—drove A. C. Huidekoper, at one time one of the largest ranchers of western North Dakota, out of the state, he intimated in a letter received by L. F. Crawford, curator of the State Historical Society, in which Mr. Huidekoper responds to a request to put down memories of his days in the "Bad Lands" for historical record.

Mr. Huidekoper had thousands of cattle and horses in the western part of the state at one time.

"Then I was indicted for illegal fencing," wrote Mr. Huidekoper after detailing experiences in the state. "At the trial I was prepared to show by authenticated surveys that I had not an acre of government land enclosed. It was useless, the mandate had come from Washington to the court at Fargo, convict Huidekoper and make an example. The next day the Associated Press flashed the news—Huidekoper convicted of illegal fencing, and so after all I had done for North Dakota I was kicked out. I sold the herd to Campbell and Reed of St. Louis and the land to Fred Pabst of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. I suppose there are hardly a dozen people living in Billings county that even know that there was a fellow by the name of Huidekoper once lived there."

Mr. Huidekoper wrote that he went to the cantonment of the Little Missouri, September, 1881, to make a buffalo hunt and visit Frank Moore, post trader at the cantonment, and Howard and Alden Eaton at the "Custer Trail Ranch."

"At this date the 'Bad Lands' of North Dakota were especially fitted for a national game preserve," he wrote. "Buffalo, elk, antelope, mountain sheep, mule and white-tail deer, silver tip and brown bear, mountain lions and bob cats were there. The streams were filled with beaver. It was a hunter's paradise. Well, the opportunity was lost. Then it became a cattle and horse range."

"Mr. Roosevelt was there and failed but the big Texas outfits like the 3-77, Ox and Hatch Knife found the finest fattening grass in the world. The Marquis de Mores expended more money in Billings county than I did but he remained there a limited time and when his industry failed of that ended it," continued Mr. Huidekoper. "My first investment in Billings county was putting in 1,000 head of cattle with the Eaton boys on the 'Custer Trail' ranch. After the hard winter of 1886-7 I sold my cattle and started the 'Little Missouri Horse Company.' I started with about 300 head. The foundation stock was imported from France and bought from the best breeding farms of this country."

"From this beginning I bred about 5,000 head of splendid horses. I bought 63,000 acres of land at a cost of over $100,000. I leased 5,000 acres of school lands. My purchase was made from the Northern Pacific Company. The sections alternated with the government sections so that I could not get my lands in a solid block. When the fencing proposition came up I went to Washington and tried to exchange half of my holdings for a similar amount of government land so as to consolidate my interests. Judge Van de Winter said it was proper thing to do but the administration said 'NO.'"

"For over 20 years I improved my stock, erected fine buildings, and one stable at Gladstone, N. D., used for fitting full-blooded stock, would accommodate 600 horses."

Mr. Huidekoper, whose lives in Meadville, Pennsylvania, quit his ranching business about 1903, Mr. Crawford said.

ORGANIZE BASEBALL LEAGUE

London, June 3.—Members of the American Legion now in London have organized and popularized a Sunday afternoon baseball league. The season opened recently with a game between the American Legion and the Rhodes Scholars teams. For benefit of Londoners the rules were printed on the backs of the score cards and frequently consulted.

Wichita, Kansas, June 3.—Sixty-five disabled World War veterans of Kansas are happy today because they have earned their first dollar in several years. In four weeks they made 50,000 out of four Plunder's Field poppers. They received two thousand dollars for this work from the American Legion Auxiliary of Kansas, under whose supervision the work was carried on.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION NECESSARY

It is a Basic Requisite For Any Living Church, Key-note Sounded at Presbyterian Assembly

Grande Rapids, June 3.—That Christian education is a basic requisite for a living church is one of the keynotes sounded in the first annual report presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly in session here by the new Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. The report is to be made by Dr. William Chalmers Covert, general secretary.

In the reorganization and consolidation of Presbyterian agencies as now represented in the Board of Christian Education Dr. Covert finds that the Presbyterian church is at last undertaking to face the problems of Christian education with genuine educational earnestness, with well-recognized educational standards in mind, and with educational ideas dominant. A comprehensive program of Christian culture, making its contacts with age groups from the youngest children to university students, is now under way through a well-articulated organization of 17 Presbyterian educational activities. The comprehensive plan of the board carries its educational purposes into adult life. It also includes an educational approach to the practical subjects in the realm of temperance, moral welfare, and Sabbath observance, in the knowledge that Christian education holds the key to an intelligent and loyal church leadership and a truly patriotic citizenship.

Dr. Harold McK. Robinson, secretary of the division of Christian education in the home, church and community, says that only one child in four now receives any organized Christian instruction. In a typical American Commonwealth, while 47 1/2 cents of every municipal dollar goes into public education, only 2-10 cents of every church dollar goes into the Sabbath school.

For the department of moral welfare, Dr. Charles Scanlon, general director, stated that slowly but surely the nation was accepting prohibition as the permanent policy of our country. He charges that apathy, anarchy and vice were at the base of opposition to prohibition. The Presbyterian church has been active in the prohibition movement from its beginning.

Discussing motion pictures, Dr. Scanlon demanded that the ideals of our young people concerning the family, social relations, religion, justice and honor must be safeguarded, and this, he said, could not safely be left to the discretion of half a dozen men who keep their eyes on the receipts of the ticket window rather than on the morals of the young.

"The motion picture," continued Dr. Scanlon, "is here to stay. It has great possibilities for good or evil. But when an enterprise as large and influential as this business is, seeks to dominate politics, dictate legislation, control the press, influence education, mock the Protestant ministry, ridicule the Sabbath, encourage immorality, cheapen marriage, promote crime and often blaspheme religion, it is time that the church of Jesus Christ awakens to its responsibility and duty." He urged that the Presbyterian General Assembly again declare strongly in favor of some measure which will provide adequate local, state and federal control in such manner that each shall supplement the other.

Concerning divorce, Dr. Scanlon said, that it was a rapidly growing social cancer seriously threatening the country's moral foundation, spiritual welfare and social integrity. In one state there were more divorces than marriages.

Dr. Harry L. Bowlby for the Christian Education Board's Sabbath observance department reviewed the work accomplished throughout the nation in fighting Sabbath desecration. Among the accomplishments noted were the stopping of naval manoeuvres at Calveston on Sunday, the stopping of a government Sunday air circus and army manoeuvres on Long Island, the defeat of the Sunday Business Bill in the New York State Legislature, the Sunday Sports Bill in New Hampshire, the

MARKET NEWS WHEAT MAKES EARLY GAINS

Starts With Rally in Absence of Offerings

Chicago, June 3.—(By the A. P.)—With offerings limited and shorts buying wheat today started with a rally from yesterday's decline. Expected defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill at Washington had no apparent influence on prices, opinions being general that such a result had already been fully taken into account. Black rust warnings reported to have been broadcast from Minneapolis were also virtually ignored. The opening which ranged from unchanged figures to 3-8 to 1-2 cents higher, with July 1.03 3-4 to 1.04 and September 1.05 7-8 to 1.06 were followed by moderate upturns all around.

Increased offerings especially on the part of houses with southwestern connections brought about a moderate decline in wheat prices today. The close was unsettled, 1/4 to 1/2 cents net lower, July 1.03 1/2 to 1/4 and September 1.05 1/2.

WHY RENTS ARE HIGH

Study of the City of Washington Reveals Some Interesting Facts

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 3.—To understand why rents are so high almost everywhere, there's no city so well worth studying as Washington. It isn't alone that Washington's a typical city, though that's true, too. The main consideration is that, due to congressional control of its affairs, its troubles are public property. Others may conceal theirs. Washington can't.

As a war-time measure, a rent commission was created in the capitol. It didn't prevent terrific rates, but if there hadn't been such a body it's the general opinion that nobody but millionaires could have paid them at all.

Recently an attempt was made to abolish this commission. It was opposed. A congressional investigation followed.

Landlords' Trust
It appeared that originally high prices probably were caused mainly by the city's growth in population without a corresponding increase in buildings. But since the war, building has been brisk, rents have declined little, if any.

Then was revealed the existence of a landlords' trust—its whole purpose being to keep rents high. When a new building was finished, the owner, if a trust member, as most of the big landlords were, began slapping mortgage after mortgage on the property. Some properties were mortgaged seven or eight times.

This gave a twofold advantage to the landlord. He got back the price of his building—and more, too—almost at once. He was able to show to the rent commission a greatly inflated sum on which to claim a return from his tenants at the rate, say, of 6 per cent.

The puzzle is how landlords managed to obtain all these loans. This is a puzzle the congressional investigators have turned over to Attorney General Stone and a grand jury to find the answer, if they can.

SHIPMENTS ON INCREASE
More Livestock Shipped on N. P. Here in May

An increase in livestock shipments during May on the Missouri River division of the Soo railroad lines reflects a change in the farming industry along the railroad, predicted last winter by S. W. Derrick, superintendent of the road.

Shipments of livestock on the division increased 43 cars in the month of May over the year 1923, a considerable increase. One carload, from Pollock, S. D., just over the line, was said by Mr. Derrick to be one of the finest shipments of cattle he had ever seen.

The increase in May is due to corn feeding of cattle during the winter. Whereas stock shipments formerly were heaviest in the early winter, when they were taken off grass, more farmers are fattening them on corn they raise. The result is a bigger price for cattle.

The wool bevel bug is estimated to cause an annual loss of more than $2,000,000 to growing cotton in the United States.

FORMER RANCH OWNER TELLS EXPERIENCES

Driven Out of North Dakota By Federal Government Indictment, He Says

OPERATED IN BAD LANDS

An indictment for fencing government land—now said not to be unusual—drove A. C. Huidekoper, at one time one of the largest ranchers of western North Dakota, out of the state, he intimated in a letter received by L. F. Crawford, curator of the State Historical Society, in which Mr. Huidekoper responds to a request to join down memories of his days in the "Bad Lands" for the historical record.

Mr. Huidekoper had thousands of cattle and horses in the western part of the state at one time.

"Then I was indicted for illegal fencing," wrote Mr. Huidekoper after detailing experiences in the state. "At that time I was prepared to show by authenticated surveys that I had not an acre of government land enclosed. It was useless, the mandate had come from Washington to the court at Fargo, convict Huidekoper and make an example."

The next day the Associated Press flashed the news—Huidekoper convicted of illegal fencing, and so after all I had done for North Dakota I was kicked out. I sold the herd to Campbell and Reed of St. Louis and the land to Fred Hubst of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. I suppose there are hardly a dozen people living in Billings county that even know that there was a fellow by the name of Huidekoper once lived there."

Mr. Huidekoper wrote that he went to the cantonment of the Little Missouri, September, 1881, to make a buffalo hunt and visit Frank Moore, post trader at the cantonment, and Howard and Alden Eaton at the "Custer Trail Ranch."

"At this date the 'Bad Lands' of North Dakota were especially fitted for a national game preserve," he wrote. "Buffalo, elk, antelope, mountain sheep, mule and white-tail deer, silver tip and brown bear, mountain lions and bob cats were there. The streams were filled with beaver. It was a hunter's paradise. Well, the opportunity was lost. Then it became a cattle and horse range."

"Mr. Roosevelt was there and failed but the big Texas outfits like the 2-777, Ox and Hatch Knife found the finest fattening grass in the world. The Marquis de Mores expended more money in Billings county than I did but he remained there a limited time and when his industry failed that ended it," continued Mr. Huidekoper. "My first investment in Billings county was putting in 1,000 head of cattle with the Eaton boys on the 'Custer Trail' ranch. After the hard winter of 1886-7 I sold my cattle and started the 'Little Missouri Horse Company.' I started with about 300 head. The foundation stock was imported from France and bought from the best breeding farms of this country."

"From this beginning I bred about 5,000 head of splendid horses. I bought 63,000 acres of land at a cost of over $100,000. I leased 5,000 acres of school lands. My purchase was made from the Northern Pacific Company. The sections alternated with the government sections so that I could not get my lands in a solid block. When the fencing proposition came up I went to Washington and tried to exchange half of my holdings for a similar amount of government land so as to consolidate my interests. Judge Van de Winter said it was the proper thing to do but the administration said 'NO.'"

"For over 20 years I improved my stock, erected fine buildings, and one stable at Gladstone, N. D., used for fitting full-blooded stock, would accommodate 600 horses."

Mr. Huidekoper, whose lives in Meadville, Pennsylvania, quit his ranching business about 1903, Mr. Crawford said.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION NECESSARY

It is a Basic Requisite For Any Living Church, Key-note Sounded at Presbyterian Assembly

Grand Rapids, June 3.—That Christian education is a basic requisite for a living church is one of the keynotes sounded in the first annual report presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly in session here by the new Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. The report is to be made by Dr. William Chalmers Covert, general secretary.

In the reorganization and consolidation of Presbyterian agencies as now represented in the Board of Christian Education Dr. Covert finds that the Presbyterian church is at last undertaking to face the problems of Christian education with genuine educational earnestness, with well-recognized educational standards in mind, and with educational ideals dominant. A comprehensive program of Christian culture, making its contacts with age groups from the young children to university students, is now under way through a well-articulated organization of all Presbyterian educational activities. The comprehensive plan of the board carries its educational purposes into adult life. It also includes an educational approach to the practical subjects in the realm of temperance, moral welfare, and Sabbath observance, in the knowledge that Christian education holds the key to an intelligent and loyal church leadership and a truly patriotic citizenship.

Dr. Harold McAl. Robinson, secretary of the division of Christian education in the home, church and community, says that only one child in four now receives any organized Christian instruction. In a typical American Commonwealth, while 47 1/2 cents of every municipal dollar goes into public education, only 2 1/2 cents of every church dollar goes into the Sabbath-school.

For the department of moral welfare, Dr. Charles Scanlon, general director, stated that slowly but surely the nation was accepting prohibition as the permanent policy of our country. He charges that appetite, anarchy and vice were at the base of opposition to prohibition. The Presbyterian church has been active in the prohibition movement from its beginning.

Discussing motion pictures, Dr. Scanlon demanded that the ideals of our young people concerning the family, social relations, religion, justice and honor must be safeguarded, and this, he said, could not safely be left to the discretion of half a dozen men who keep their eyes on the receipts of the ticket window rather than on the morals of the young.

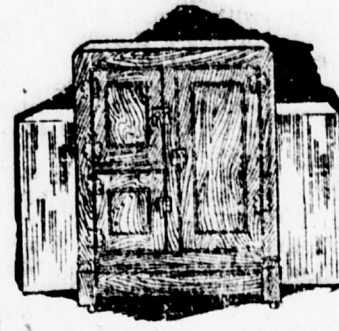

"The motion picture," continued Dr. Scanlon, "is here to stay. It has great possibilities for good or evil. But when an enterprise as large and influential as this business is, seeks to dominate politics, dictate legislation, control the press, influence education, mock the Protestant ministry, ridicule the Sabbath, encourage immorality, cheapen marriage, promote crime and often blaspheme religion, it is time that the church of Jesus Christ awakens to its responsibility and duty." He urged that the Presbyterian General Assembly again declare strongly in favor of sensible measures which will provide adequate local, state and federal control in such manner that each shall supplement the other.

Concerning divorce, Dr. Scanlon said, that it was a rapidly growing social cancer seriously threatening the country's moral foundation, spiritual welfare and social integrity. In one state there were more divorces than marriages.

Dr. Harry L. Bowley for the Christian Education Board's Sabbath observance department reviewed the work accomplished throughout the nation in fighting Sabbath desecration. Among the accomplishments noted were the stopping of naval maneuvers at Galveston on Sunday, the stopping of a government Sunday air circus and army maneuvers on Long Island, the defeat of the Sunday Business Bill in the New York State Legislature, the Sunday Sports Bill in New Hampshire, the

More than 500 votes had been cast in the city school election by three o'clock this afternoon. More Soft Wood Trees Are Now Being Planted

The people of the United States consume twice as much softwood lumber as they do hardwood lumber, according to the New York state college of forestry at Syracuse university. The softwoods are cut off more rapidly because of their better adaptability to man's needs and their lighter weight. The pines, hemlocks and spruces float easily and this facilitates transportation to the mills. They are hauled by bobsleds or sent by flume or chute to a stream or lake and floated to the mills. Maples, beeches and birches will very often float, which necessitates artificial means of transportation such as motortrucks, tractors and railroads, or expensive rafting. Even where such costly transport is required for softwoods the greater value of the product has made lumbering profitable. But with hardwood this type of logging is too expensive except where the hardwoods are especially fine and the demand is good with a near market. The dwindling supply of softwood timber is making it unprofitable to plant evergreen trees that ever before, says the college. Today many hardwood forests and farm woodlots are being converted to the more valuable softwoods. It often pays on such woodlots to girdle unmerchantable hardwood trees so the undergrowth of softwoods that have been artificially planted or naturally reseeded will not be retarded by the shade of their older hardwoods. By cutting the bark around the hardwood trees, their foliage will disappear and the trees will die, thus allowing enough light to fall upon the young softwoods to give them their natural rate of growth. In the average forest such elimination of hardwoods allows the coniferous or softwood species to take on additional volume of about one-fourth cord annually for twenty-five to thirty years, depending upon their age. This increase in growth will offset the expense of girdling and keep the forest on a profitable basis.

George Meredith Ordered All Manuscripts Burned

George Meredith placed no value whatsoever on the manuscripts of his novels. Once when he said so to Miss Nichol, she answered testily that it was mock modesty on his part to say such a thing. To this Meredith merely gave her an instruction: to make a bonfire of manuscripts at the end of the garden. "And he was set on it, too," she told us. "But," she pleaded, "can't I have some of them as keepsakes?" "Yes," he answered carelessly, "take whichever you like." She selected several of the precious documents—single sheets on which he had written out his short poems. Miss Nichol led Mr. Brooks and me down into the vegetable garden, and there, a black little heap of ashes, lay all that remained of manuscripts worth who knows how much. Vacation Perils Are Vanishing As Pleasure Seekers Observe Health and Safety Precautions

July, August and September are the months when most people plan to take their vacations, and they are not only the most healthful months in the year, but they are the months which for some years past have shown the greatest decline in mortality. Every one wants to die happy, but nobody wants to die while enjoying a vacation. Fortunately vacations are not as perilous as they used to be, and by the exercise of a little forethought and prudence the few lurking dangers can usually be avoided. Summer drownings are not as numerous as formerly, in spite of the fact that more persons are exposed to risk. The increased knowledge of swimming, the improved methods of rescue work and a more general understanding of resuscitation methods, probably accounts for the decline. Back in 1914, the mortality tables of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show that ten out of every 100,000 of its industrial policyholders met death by drowning. Last year it was less than seven. In July, 1921, the company was paying claims at the rate of nine deaths by drowning daily. Last July the average was almost two less. Accidental drowning is still a serious vacation peril, but most deaths from this cause are preventable ones and the exercise of extreme care on the part of both swimmers and non-swimmers cannot be too strongly urged.

The enforcement of better sanitary regulations at summer resorts, particularly as they relate to the water supply and to the disposal of wastes, has tended to reduce the danger from typhoid fever and other intestinal diseases. Good food, fresh air and good water are three prime requisites of any vacation. Fresh air is usually taken for granted, but one cannot be too careful in assuring himself that the resort selected has a dependably pure water supply and that the food supply is everything that it ought to be. Health departments have done good work in improving the standards of milk dealers and it ought to be an easy task to find a place where even the baby will thrive, on the va-

FARGO MAN IS GIVEN MEDAL

Awarded Vail Medal For Courage in Rescue

Fargo, June 3.—Edward I. Hannah, superintendent of plant for the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company in the North Dakota Division, has been awarded a bronze medal for his initiative and courage in rescuing a small boy from drowning in the James river at Jamestown on November 14, 1923.

The Vail Medal Plan, under which the award was made, is a memorial to the late Theodore N. Vail, pioneer president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. From a memorial fund to which Mrs. Vail was a generous contributor awards are made each year to telephone employees who have rendered heroic and noteworthy public service. Mr. Hannah was in Jamestown on business and had just crossed a bridge over the James river when he heard the child's scream, followed by a heavy splash. Dashing back to the bridge, he found that a small boy had fallen into the river and was being swept down stream. He flung off his overcoat, quickly waded into the stream, shoulder deep, lunged for the boy just as he was being carried by, caught him by the hair and towed him to the shore, where the boy's lungs were cleared of water. After wrapping the boy in a heavy coat, Mr. Hannah brought him home.

Twenty-seven years ago June 1, Mr. Hannah started his work for the Northwestern Bell Company at Omaha. There he made a steady advancement, serving as lineman, local wire chief, district wire chief, district plant superintendent, and finally became division superintendent of plant in July, 1913. In 1920, he came to Fargo in his present position.

Six other bronze medals were awarded by the Theodore N. Vail Committee of Award of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company which met at Omaha, Neb., recently.

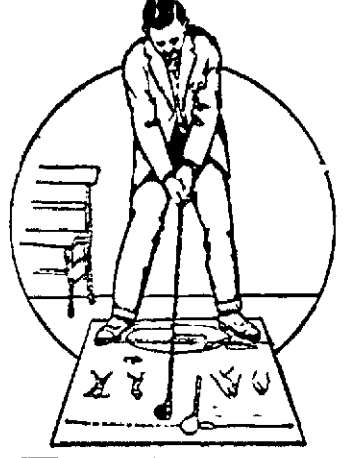

MONK ADOPTS HOGS
Republic, Kas., June 3.—Jock, a diminutive monkey, has been a regular inhabitant of a pigsty on the farm of W. H. McClure, near here, for three years. In that time numerous families of pigs have grown to hoghood under Jock's guiding care and have become expert "saddle hogs," with the monkey as chief jockey.

Golf Charts Teach Strokes and Standing Positions

To check the game of experienced golfers or to teach beginners, a set of six charts, printed with directions and illustrations showing correct standing positions, grips and strokes, and other fine points, has been devised. With them, one may read a lesson in golf technique and follow it at the same time. Printed on heavy paper, the charts are to be placed on the floor. Standing over them with club in hand, the player is able to get the proper grip and position and execute the stroke in correct form. The diagrams afford a constant check and means of comparison for accuracy in every detail.

New Theory of Radio Is Advanced

In the opinion of Carl Pfanzstiel, a Chicago radio engineer, the wave theory of radio will soon be exploded completely, and the radiant-energy theory take its place in explaining radio phenomena. Mr. Pfanzstiel is of the opinion that there is no such thing as "ether" as commonly re-

Portable Garret Step

In bungalows where limited space does not permit built-in garret steps, a "folding" stepladder of the kind shown in the drawing has been found very convenient. It made of 1 by 4-in. lumber, the risers being set between the sides at such an angle that they are perfectly horizontal when the ladder is pulled away from the wall. Two large screweyes fastened to the

Serviceable Dandelion Hook

Occasionally the breaking off of a lobe of a hoe renders it unfit for further use and it is then usually thrown away. However, a serviceable tool for the purpose of removing dandelions can easily be made from it. The shank of the broken hoe is straightened in line with the handle, and the blade is cut and filed to the shape shown. A V-shaped notch being cut in the end and filed to a sharp cutting edge. One of the points is cut to form a pulling hook, the throat of which is, of course, dull. A tool of this kind is very handy, as it can be used to cut the dandelions at their stems or pull them out entirely.

Can the Skin See, Is Query

That human skin has powers of vision which to a great extent have been lost through years of neglect, is the theory of a French scientist. A series of experiments conducted by him are said to support this belief. The sensitivity of the skin and underlying tissue with its intricate net of nerves is well known, but no one heretofore has supposed them to be capable of picking up light waves in a manner comparable with the process of seeing.

Miss Agnes Parsons has returned from Chicago where she spent her vacation.

Juice of Lemon Whitens The Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart of the most wonderful skin whitener, softer and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a crease, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

FOR BRIDE'S TROUSSEAU

The white satin dummie gown is fashion's whim at the moment and the June bride can find them as simple or as elaborate as she wishes. This one strikes a happy medium of absolute simplicity as to line with a floral design of beads in shades of red at the left front.

Sweet Briar: J. Freeman, Steele; N. M. Rapp, Mandan; Mike Hryckow, Willton; Mrs. J. F. Owens, Hazen; Albert Fishman, McClusky; Helga Nielson, Mercer.

HIGHEST-PAID BAKER IN U. S. COMES TO CITY

Free Demonstration To Be Given at Barker Baking and Candy Co. Thursday

All women of the city as well as men who are interested, are being extended an invitation by the Barker Baking and Candy Company to attend a public demonstration to be given at the Barker establishment, on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock by Mr. Arthur A. Winters, the so-called "Caruso of the Oven" who is spending three days in the city giving a "course of instruction" to the bakers of the Barker shop.

Mr. Winters is said to be the highest-salaried baker in the world, his time being valued at the rate of $175 for two hours. He has in his repertoire some 18,000 recipes which he prefers not to commit to writing as some of them are reputed to be worth a thousand dollars apiece.

When the Prince of Wales was on his official visit to Canada in 1919, Mr. Winters cooked for him. He made French pastries, yellow angel food cake, molasses layer, devil's food cake and pound cake, all of which pleased the taste of royalty. It is reported that prince was so well pleased, in fact, that his secretary later wrote back, asking that Mr. Winters make a consignment of buns, coughnuts and macaroons.

This reputed "Caruso of the Oven" attained some eminence during the war when he evolved a sugarless pastry while in the employ of the United States government.

Mr. Winters is widely traveled, having given demonstrations similar to that which he will give here on Thursday, at points in all parts of the country.
Mr. Winters will instruct the bakers of the Barker Baking and Candy Company, Wednesday and Thursday morning, and Thursday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock he will give the ladies of the city his demonstration and offer them some of his world famous recipes. The Barker Baking and Candy Company will handle the Winters products after he leaves.

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:
Gentlemen:
Your "Klomb Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in the last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.
Yours truly,
Arlington H. Carman,
Pemberton, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The Mighty Redwoods

"Splendid news," said the mighty Redwood trees.
And the little young trees which were sprouting from stumps and roots about whispered.
"May we hear the news?"
"Ah, yes," the great Redwood trees answered. "You know we belong to one of the greatest forests in the world."
"People come from all over to see us, and we look our best and our mightiest because we do not want to disappoint them. And because, too, we want to always keep the great traditions of the Redwood trees."

"We always want to stand straight and tall, to show how we can resist fire when we are in our prime. We like to have them know that we grow to be very old—often much over a thousand years old."
"We are fully grown trees when we are sixty years of age or even when we are fifty. Then we have our height and strength."

"You, our little trees, are growing up, too. And this is the news we have to tell."
"The people have decided that when some of the members of our family must be taken for lumber such parts as are chopped down will be filled with shade trees so as to protect, and help in letting the little trees of our family grow."

"For they would miss our shade and our help and the people will see that they are given assistance."

"Then great forests of us will be saved so that people will see us."

"For years many have heard of us who have never seen us, but who some day will do their very best to come to us. We cannot go to them."

"We will look our best, and we will wait years and years for them. But we cannot go to them."

"Perhaps one of the reasons we grow to be so old is because a Redwood great, great, great grandfather years ago said:

"Let us wait another year. Perhaps more people will have the chance to see us then."

"And so, perhaps, the habit of staying around a long, long time."

"We Look Our Best."

looking our best and our noblest was started in that way.

"Ah, yes, it is splendid news, for now everything will be done so that Redwood forests will always be here."

"People will say,"
"Oh, those splendid old giant trees have been saved!"
"And they will rejoice."

"And they will say,"
"See how the young trees are being helped and how replanting is done where lumber has been needed from some of the others."

"And they will rejoice."

"For it would never, never do if the people came from all over the world and said,"
"Where are the giant Redwood forests we've come so many miles to see, and which we've been waiting years for the chance to come and see?" and should find that anything had happened."

"So this new arrangement is perfect. And it's sure for it has been carried out for some little time now. We are so sure about it now that we talk about it as news."

"We even wait to make sure of our news! We never believe in hurrying. Perhaps that is why we live so long and don't get ourselves all out in a little bit of time."

"And in the great Redwood forests there was happiness."

There will be a feature picture, "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

There is sure fire entertainment in the act of the Butterfly Kiddies. They are eleven clever live-wire propositions. The juvenile entertainers range from teen age to kindergarten tots but the feature, they offer are not juvenile in character nor in performance.

Several changes in scenes, costumes and varied, pretty and fresh tableaux that are effective, besides good stage management but it is the work of the Kiddies, themselves, the snap and vim and spontaneity of their performance that makes the entertainment get across big says an Albert Lea, Minnesota, review. It continues:

"There are several ensemble numbers, prettily staged, including the popular 'Old Fashioned Garden,' and too many good solo acts to make special mention possible. The very diminutive gentleman in full dress suit, the Scotch laddie, two formidable tiny comedienne, a 'Mrs. Gallagher' number and a wee, small singer, who has all the earmarks of a veteran funmaker, are among the features offered. The singing is good and there is also some extremely clever dancing."

Both young and old will enjoy the Butterfly Kiddie. The touch of pathos, which usually attends watching children on the stage is entirely absent. The Butterflies are so buoyant, having a good time and appear so well cared for and so full of health and vim that few will be inclined to feel sorry for them. The program offered this season is a vast improvement over that of a year ago, when the company first appeared here.

If you like clean cut entertainment of the better kind don't miss seeing the Kiddies."

Mrs. H. C. Iverson of Wilton left this morning to attend the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

AT THE MOVIES

A picture with a wide range of scene and a story of great human interest is "His Children's Children," the screen version of Arthur Train's successful novel which will be shown at the Eltinge theatre Wednesday and Thursday. The cast is an extraordinary one and among the featured players are Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackaill, James Rennie and George Fawcett. The principal supporting players include Mahlon Hamilton, Warner Oland, John Davidson and Joe Burke.

The story, which deals with the foibles of modern society life, high finance, and parental neglect of children, gives wide scope for sympathetic and picturesque treatment. Scenes in the picture range from Wall street to the Denver freight yards with many others, including Long Island homes, English mansions, Broadway cafes, subways, elevated roads, beaches, Greenwich Village, and Long Island hunting lodges.

AT THE CAPITOL

Some of the most beautiful, well appointed interior settings ever built for a photoplay are shown in Charles Chaplin's first United Artists attraction, "A Woman of Paris," now being shown at the Capitol theatre.

While no massive structures or colossal sets were erected for the production, the settings were designed with infinite care and carried out with a fidelity to detail to be in keeping with the story. The boulevard apartment of Marie St. Clair, the character portrayed by Edna Purviance, is most exquisite. While gaudy to a degree; it is in keeping with the life she lives. The furnishings and draperies are the finest of French importations, showing a no small fortune in interior decorations.

The home of Pierre Revel, the richest man in Paris, reveals the most dignified interior settings ever exhibited, all carried out in good taste, presenting to a degree the character of this man of wealth and pleasure.

The rural scenes and pleasant life of France are portrayed in settings of piquant charm and sweetness, presenting a distinct contrast to the surroundings of the life in the gayest city of the world.

HIGHEST-PAID BAKER IN U. S. COMES TO CITY

Free Demonstration To Be Given at Barker Baking and Candy Co. Thursday

All women of the city as well as men who are interested, are being extended an invitation by the Barker Baking and Candy Company to attend a public demonstration to be given at the Barker establishment, on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock by Mr. Arthur A. Winters, the so-called "Caruso of the Oven" who is spending three days in the city giving a course of instructions to the bakers of the Barker shop.

Mr. Winters is said to be the highest-salaried baker in the world, his time being valued at the rate of $175 for two hours. He has in his repertoire some 16,000 recipes which he prefers not to commit to writing as some of them are reputed to be worth a thousand dollars apiece.

When the Prince of Wales was on his official visit to Canada in 1919, Mr. Winters, cooked for him. He made French pastry, yellow angel food cake, mo-ho layer, devil's food cake and pound cake, all of which pleased the taste of royalty. It is reported that prince was so well pleased, in fact, that his secretary later wrote back asking that Mr. Winters like a consignment of buns, doughnuts and macaroons.

This reputed "Caruso of the Oven" attained some eminence during the war when he evolved a sugarless pastry while in the employ of the United States government.

Mr. Winters is widely traveled, having given demonstrations similar to that which he will give here on Thursday, at points in all parts of the country.

Mr. Winters will instruct the bakers of the Barker Baking and Candy Company Wednesday and Thursday morning, and Thursday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock he will give the ladies of the city his demonstration and offer them some of his world famous recipes. The Barker Baking and Candy Company will handle the Winters products after he leaves.

"Ah, yes, it is splendid news, for now everything will be done so that Redwood forests will always be here."

"People will say,

"Oh, those splendid old giant trees have been saved!"

"And they will rejoice."

"And they will say,

"See how the young trees are being helped and how replanting is done where lumber has been needed from some of the others."

"And they will rejoice."

"For it would never, never do if the people came from all over the world and said,

"Where are the giant Redwood forests we've come so many miles to see, and which we've been waiting years for the chance to come and see?" and should find that anything had happened."

"So this new arrangement is perfect. And it's sure—for it has been carried out for some little time now. We are so sure about it now that we talk about it as news."

"We even wait to make sure of our news! We never believe in hurrying. Perhaps that is why we live so long—we don't wear ourselves all out in a little bit of time."

And in the great Redwood forests there was happiness.

KIDDIES COME HERE IN NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Butterfly Kiddies, at Auditorium, Present Fine Program, Says Reviewer

The Butterfly Kiddies will present a novel entertainment at the city Auditorium Thursday and Friday.

There will be two shows each night, at 7:30 p. m. and 9 p. m., and a matinee on Thursday at 3 p. m.

There will be a feature picture, "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

"There is sure fire entertainment in the act of the Butterfly Kiddies. They are eleven clever live-wire propositions. The juvenile entertainers range from teen age to kindergarten tots but the features they offer are not juvenile in character nor in performance."

Several changes in scenes, costumes and varied, pretty and fresh tableaux that are effective, bespeak good stage management but it is the work of the kiddies, themselves, the snap and vim and spontaneity of their performance that makes the entertainment get across big ways an Albert Lea, Minnesota, review. It continues:

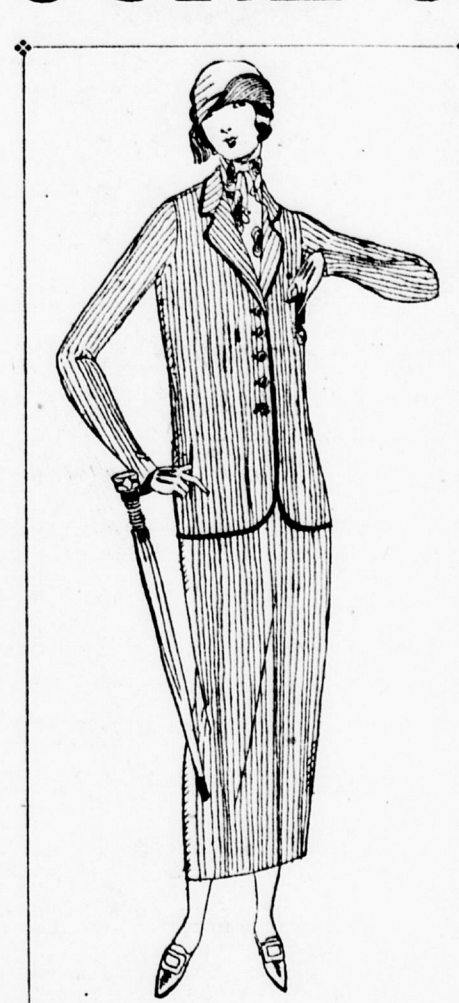

"There are several ensemble numbers, prettily staged, including the popular 'Old Fashioned Garden,' and too many good solo acts to make special mention possible. The very diminutive gentleman in full dress suit, the Scotch laddie, two imitable tiny comedians in a 'Mr. Gallagher and Shehan' number and a wee, small singer, who has all the earmarks of a veteran funmaker, are among the features offered. The singing is good and there is also some extremely clever dancing."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

POLITICAL CANDOR
Mr. Ramsey MacDonald, the labor government premier of Great Britain, with a socialistic inclined party behind him, has amazed many political observers both in England and elsewhere by his occasional simple, frank explanation of conditions. Mr. MacDonald, while his party lay trembling with a virtual vote of confidence about to be taken in the House of Commons said:

In regard to our pledges and their fulfillment, why should I not confess we were a little innocent in this matter? Things which seemed very simple to carry out when we were without experience became very complicated and difficult when we became members of a Cabinet responsible for them.

A frank statement from a man in public life of a condition that has been duplicated many times! Oftentimes candidates new in the political arena have been swept into office with the promise and expectation of virtually revolutionizing the conduct of the public business entrusted to them, fully believing they can bring a mild Utopia with the wave of a hand of power, overturn tradition and custom in a moment. And oftentimes reformers who have gone into office in big cities in just such manner have found themselves so inexperienced that their administration may reek of graft and corruption unparalleled in machine politics. The system of government in the nation is pretty well rooted. The voter may well be skeptical of him who promises too much.

THEY KEEP COMING BACK
Two more banks in North Dakota have reopened. Forced to suspend because of "frozen" credits they are now ready to take up their regular banking business again. Four banks recently have reopened in Cavalier county. Doubtless many bank closings were caused by conditions which were temporary but which the bankers did not have time to remedy in the face of a lack of confidence in their institutions. The ability of many banks to reopen should further strengthen the faith of every citizen in his state. The state is on a solid foundation. North Dakota cannot be kept from "coming back."

TUNING
Radio already has strongly affected the electric light and power industry. More people stay at home to enjoy radio, which means more use of lights and greater current consumption. We're quoting a speaker at convention of National Electric Light Association.

Statistical business fortune tellers predict that in five years 15 million American homes will be using electric lights and at least half will be equipped with radio.

Regarding who should pay the cost of broadcasting radio concerts: The electric lighting industry would find it profitable to chip in. Also the telegraph companies, which are getting an enormous amount of new business from radio-messages from listeners to broadcasters.

FLIVVERS
Henry Ford now is selling cars practically at cost, says the Wall Street Journal. It claims Ford's profits "come from parts sales, freight charges, sale of by-products, interest on bank balances and securities."

We don't know whether this is true. But it's quite possible.

Ford's position is unique in business history. Competition in his early days might have kept him awake nights. Now his business is so big and strong that a newcomer tackling it competitively is like a boy after Dempsey. But Ford will have plenty of competition later—airplanes.

INTERWOVEN
Radio is stimulating the business of electric light and telegraph companies. It is also a gold mine for the copper, rubber and other industries. Illustrating how one industry creates business for others.

A factory gets a lot of orders. In filling them, it generates business for railroads, makers of materials, power companies, coal mines, not to mention that machinery keeps wearing out and has to be replaced. Industrially we are as dependent on each other as the tiny fossils which, clustered in millions, make up a coral reef.

CRIME
If prohibition has reduced crime, the bankers haven't heard about it. Robberies and other crimes against banks have "risen to heights heretofore unknown." So reports J. E. Baum, manager of the protective department of American Bankers Association.

Forgeries, check alterations and minor thefts are at a rate 48 per cent higher than a year ago. Banks, nevertheless, are easily 1000 times safer for your money than any other hiding place you can find. That's the primary purpose of banks—safe hiding place.

Safety comes first, interest or profits second.

JOKERS
Texas Rangers will send a "spirited mustang" to the Prince of Wales. The gift is Tejana, a fiery beast worthy of the spurs of Smoky and Cotton.

The prince has become an expert at getting thrown on his head, but he'll probably learn something about horseflesh shortly. The prancers from our southwest require more glue on the saddle than stable-bred English nags. Still, maybe he's been practicing for Tejana without knowing it.

New York officers caught a man smuggling in a diamond, but maybe kegs of booze are harder to see.

A high tax on business is like high tacks in shoes, hurting progress.

BURNING UP THE PAPER MARKS

One feature of the plan for German economic reconstruction outlined in the Dawes Report is so extraordinary that it has as yet been subjected to relatively little argument; it involves an experiment in national finance that stands without parallel in history. If the proposed German bank of issue is established, its notes are to become the sole legal tender for the entire nation; all the existing currency is to be called in as soon as may be practicable, which will, of course, mean that it will immediately cease to have any exchange value whatsoever.

In one sense this does not involve any real change from existing conditions. When it requires a billion paper marks to buy a box of matches, it can hardly be said that a single mark has any value at all. And yet there is a strange tenacity in men's names. German marks nowadays are quoted in fractions of cents per trillion, but the fact remains that they are quoted. They exist, they have a theoretical value; nay, in Germany they can be accumulated in sufficient quantities to have actual purchasing power.

If the Dawes plan should become a reality, these trillions and quadrillions of paper marks would simply cease to exist. The whole framework of Germany's internal finance would disappear, and the holder of a quintillion paper marks of the old issue would actually be no better off than the man with ten. The Dawes program, indeed, does not specify this, but no other result is possible; the mere fact that the old marks would have to be retired as no longer legal tender would make it impossible to set up any ratio value for them.

In other words, so far as paper currency is concerned, Germany's slate would be wiped clean. There would be no change in the conditions governing payments for government bonds or private debts, on a gold basis would remain just as they now are. But all paper debts would be swept away, not by special edict or decree, but simply because their basis unit would have no measurable value in the terms of the new currency issue.

It will be a bewildering spectacle, if it takes place. The French franc, the Italian lira, the Austrian crown, are all far down in the exchange scale, and fiscal ingenuity can neither raise them nor get rid of them. But in Germany it is proposed to create a new currency holding its par value, because of the international security back of it by simply expunging the entire past. The mark, solemnly burned, is to rise like a phoenix from its own ashes. Germany, not far as its paper currency, which means the paper indebtedness of its government to its people, is concerned, is bankrupt, but the fact is still officially denied; the Dawes plan proposes to recognize that bankruptcy, and by cancelling domestic debts running to incredible figures seek out a new way in which the German foreign debt for reparations may eventually be paid. Minneapolis Journal.

REMOVING THE METHODIST AMUSEMENT BAN

At a time when religious, educational and political institutions throughout the country are undertaking grandiose schemes for the regulation of private conduct, it is immensely significant that the Methodist Episcopal General Conference should take a step in the other direction by abolishing the rule forbidding Methodists from indulging in any amusements except those "which can be used in the name of the Lord Jesus."

This prohibition has been capable of a wide latitude of interpretation, but it has been generally agreed that it applied specifically to dancing, card-playing, and theater-going. Although nearly all Methodists have disregarded the prohibitions of theater-going and dancing, the ban has remained a part of the Methodist creed and has seemed irremovable.

But now at last it is removed. The Methodist Church has learned by long experience the futility of attempting to prohibit amusements which have the general sanction of law-abiding, respectable members of the community. To say that because some games are demoralizing, all games are demoralizing, and that because attendance at some theatrical performances is degrading, all theaters are degrading, is to say something which is so flatly contrary to human experience as to fall on deaf ears.

This faculty has been so thoroughly demonstrated that at last the prohibition has been revised. That so old a church as the Methodist Church, which for many generations has made this gesture of drastically regulating private conduct, should now forgo that gesture, is vastly significant of the growing realization that private conscience, private desires and private judgment must have a degree of liberty—that the policeman's club is frequently a futile weapon—and that man grows weak if he is robbed of his right of self-determination and must rely upon the state to map out his course. Chicago Journal of Commerce.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Mister Ringtail Coon came into the little store in the woods and walked up to the counter and said, "I would like to buy some party invitations, please, with pink edges and a picture on top."

"Here's the very thing, Mister Coon," said Nancy. "What are you giving, a birthday party or a dinner party?"

"Neither," answered Mister Coon. "I'm giving a radio party. I'm going to ask all my friends in to hear my new radio machine that I bought."

"That will be fine," said Nancy. "What are you going to say on your invitations?"

"Why, I thought maybe you'd help with that," said Mister Coon. "You see, I am no great hand at writing. I sort of thought I'd begin this way: 'I take my pen in hand to ask you to—'"

"That's too old-fashioned," said Nancy. "Suppose you say, 'Mister Coon requests the pleasure of your company on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. R. S. V. P.'"

"Sounds pretty elegant," said Mister Coon. "But what does the R. S. V. P. mean? Refreshments served very promptly, I suppose?"

"Oh, no!" said Nancy. "It's French. It means to please send an answer right away."

And so it was arranged. Nancy wrote all the invitations to Mister Coon's radio party, and Nick took them around.

When all the neighbors received invitations with pink edges and a picture on top and such fine words, there was a great flurry and commotion.

"I haven't a thing to wear!" called Mrs. Cracknuts out of her front window to Mrs. Bunney.

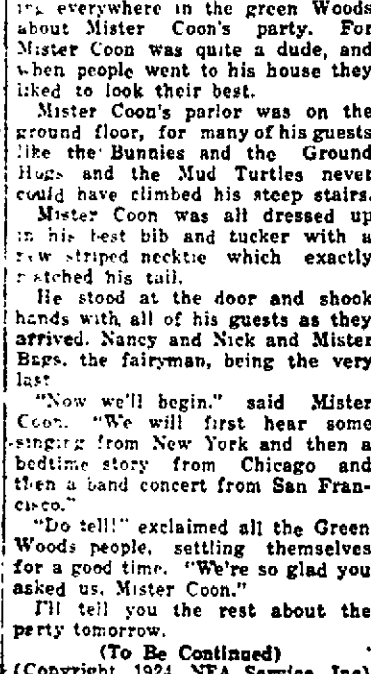

"We either," said Mrs. Bunney. "I've worn my brown alpaca with the white spots to every mortal thing that's ever gone on. And the

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

By Albert Apple

Doctors claim people are healthier than they used to be. One reason is that few can afford to be ill these days. The high cost of sickness is one of the fastest children of the high cost of living.

A few generations ago, nearly every one had time to burn. No one rushed unless the sheriff was after him or he was in danger of missing a train.

Women sat placidly around at "sewing circles," comparing surgical operations. There was even a time when a woman's social standing was determined by the number of times she had gone under the knife. Men, too, had leisure. They congregated at the tavern bar or around the stove in the general store, swapping remedies for rheumatism, backache and the "all-in" feeling.

The public had a morbid interest in disease. Also, it had spare time to gratify the craving to be ill. While this might not have been exactly a craving, still every one sort of expected illness as a part of fate, not to be dodged. This mental attitude made them succumb easily.

Today people can't afford to be sick. They can't afford the time. They can't afford the money. Where a patient once was reasonably sure of getting off with a diagnosis that he had some such simple ailment as the grippe or hives, science has discovered all sorts of mysterious, complicated maladies with hifalutin' names.

Where grandpa might have had indigestion, we can't get off with less than bloatism, excessive secretion of the endocrine glands, or a psychic "complex."

The old-time country doctor drove his horse 12 miles, devoted an hour to examining the patient, measured out a quart of stuff that tasted like extract of gall, and threw in half a peck of pills of various colors for good measure. His charge was a dollar for the whole works—and he was an optimist if he expected ever to get the dollar.

Times have changed. The patient often is sent to have his teeth X-rayed. He's shunted from one specialist to another. After a few experiences, he subconsciously discovers that he can't afford to be sick. So he forgets about it. Maybe he "gets" him and he dies. But it's sure-fire for imaginary ailments.

A steep bill from the doctor is excellent medicine, about the best there is. We're not implying that all disease is imaginary. Far from it. But much of the sickness of former generations was either imaginary or the result of foolish living—gluttony, lack of sanitation, and the absence of quarantine in infectious epidemics.

The doctors have taught us how to live sensibly. That's their public service and it's a tremendous one.

LETTER FROM RUTH ELLINGTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

DEAREST LESLIE: Hurrah! Hurrah and a tiger! Why, dear girl, with six thousand dollars we can make a finger snap that will be the talk of the United States. People will come from everywhere. We can do a mail order business.

I wonder if you realize what the first six months of our venture has totaled in profits. I intended to keep it to tell you when you arrive home, but I can't. I took an inventory this last week, and found that we have on hand goods which total more than our original three thousand dollar purchase, and a deposit of twenty-five hundred dollars in the bank—almost a hundred per cent profit.

I haven't been able for quite a while to supply the demands of our customers here in Albany. What I would like to do would be to add our own designers and workers. Every day I have women come in here to show me the most beautiful needlework you ever saw, hoping that I will engage them.

We could add this workshop for about three thousand dollars, and we could make a far greater profit than we do now. Of course, we cannot obtain experienced workers as cheaply as they do in New York, for I for one do not believe in sweatshop methods. But even when paying a living wage for the most experienced workers, we can make a great deal more money than we do now.

Assurance of immediate tax reduction was given again today for the sixtieth time within the last two months.

I shall insist, however, my dear Leslie, upon you taking two-thirds instead of one-half the profits. I have always thought it was a one-half arrangement, for with one-half the profits and my liberal salary, I am making really much more than you, and I never could have done this, dear, without you. I do not think this is fair.

You were my friend when I needed friends most. You believed in me when not a man in the world, unless it was Walter Burke, would have done so. After this no man may say to me that women do not stand by each other. If I were being tried for a crime of which I was innocent, but knew my case was clouded with a great deal of circumstantial evidence, I would rather be tried by a jury of women than by a jury of men. And as for gossip, women are much greater gossipers than men, and they are much more malicious in their gossiping.

I feel very strongly on this subject, because you know the story that got around about me when Harry left me. It was the man that said I probably knew all about Harry's defection, and that I certainly must have known about his betrayal of me with the woman he took away with him. Of course, I knew he was paying the woman some attention, but I claim that a wife is the one to know her husband's heart. I am sure of it. DON'T BLAME THE CHILD

Don't scold your children for lack of control over the kidney secretions. It is not always the children's fault—in many cases it means weak kidneys and can be readily righted. Read this Bismarck father's advice.

Wm. O. Baer, carpenter, 22 S. 6th St., says: "My little girl was troubled with kidney weakness and she had no control over the kidney secretions. She was nervous and peevish and was often restless at night. The complaint came on after she had recovered from infantile paralysis and it seemed to leave her kidneys weak and disordered. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and thought it well to try them on the child. After taking these pills over the trouble and her health picked up as once and she is now strong and healthy."

FEW GAMES ARE PLAYED

Washington Defeats Athletics in Americans

Chicago, June 3.—Most of the major league baseball teams were idle yesterday, being en route between various cities.

In the Americans, only Washington and Philadelphia got into action, the Senators winning 8 to 3 behind the veteran Walter Johnson's good pitching. Johnson fanned seven.

In the Nationals New York got a firmer grip on first place, beating Boston, 9 to 6. George Kelley, New York first sacker, scored four runs and hit a home run, a double and a single.

Carey's homer with Cuyler on base in the eighth paved the way for Pittsburgh's 6 to 2 win over St. Louis.

Cruikshank Tackles The Fates Again

Main Thriller at Inwood Not Averse to Starting Anew at Detroit

By Joe Williams

What will Bobby Cruikshank do in this year's open championship? The wee Scot was the main thriller in the clock and masher assembly at Inwood last summer.

In some respects he was a bigger hero than Bobby Jones, the amateur who beat him in the play-off after the two had tied at the end of 72 holes.

Cruikshank came up from nowhere to sit among the elite, a member of the unkempt mob who broke through demanding recognition for the bourgeois.

Jones had previously demonstrated his skill and was expected to win, or at least to finish near the top.

The pint-size professional, however, was just one of the many starters, a 50 to 1 shot in pre-tournament calculations.

But as long as golf is played Cruikshank's thrilling finish to tie Jones will be remembered, the long, screaming iron shot he played to the home green, and the nine-foot putt that dropped for the needed three on one of the stiffest par four holes in the land.

Cruikshank faced a situation that would have tested the iron nerves of a Thor, and came through with an unwavering brilliancy that wrote imperishable golf history.

You haven't read much of Cruikshank since that day. His contributions to competitive golf in the east and the winter tournaments were of minor nature. Was Inwood his big opportunity? Is he destined now to fall back with the drifting mob, whence he came?

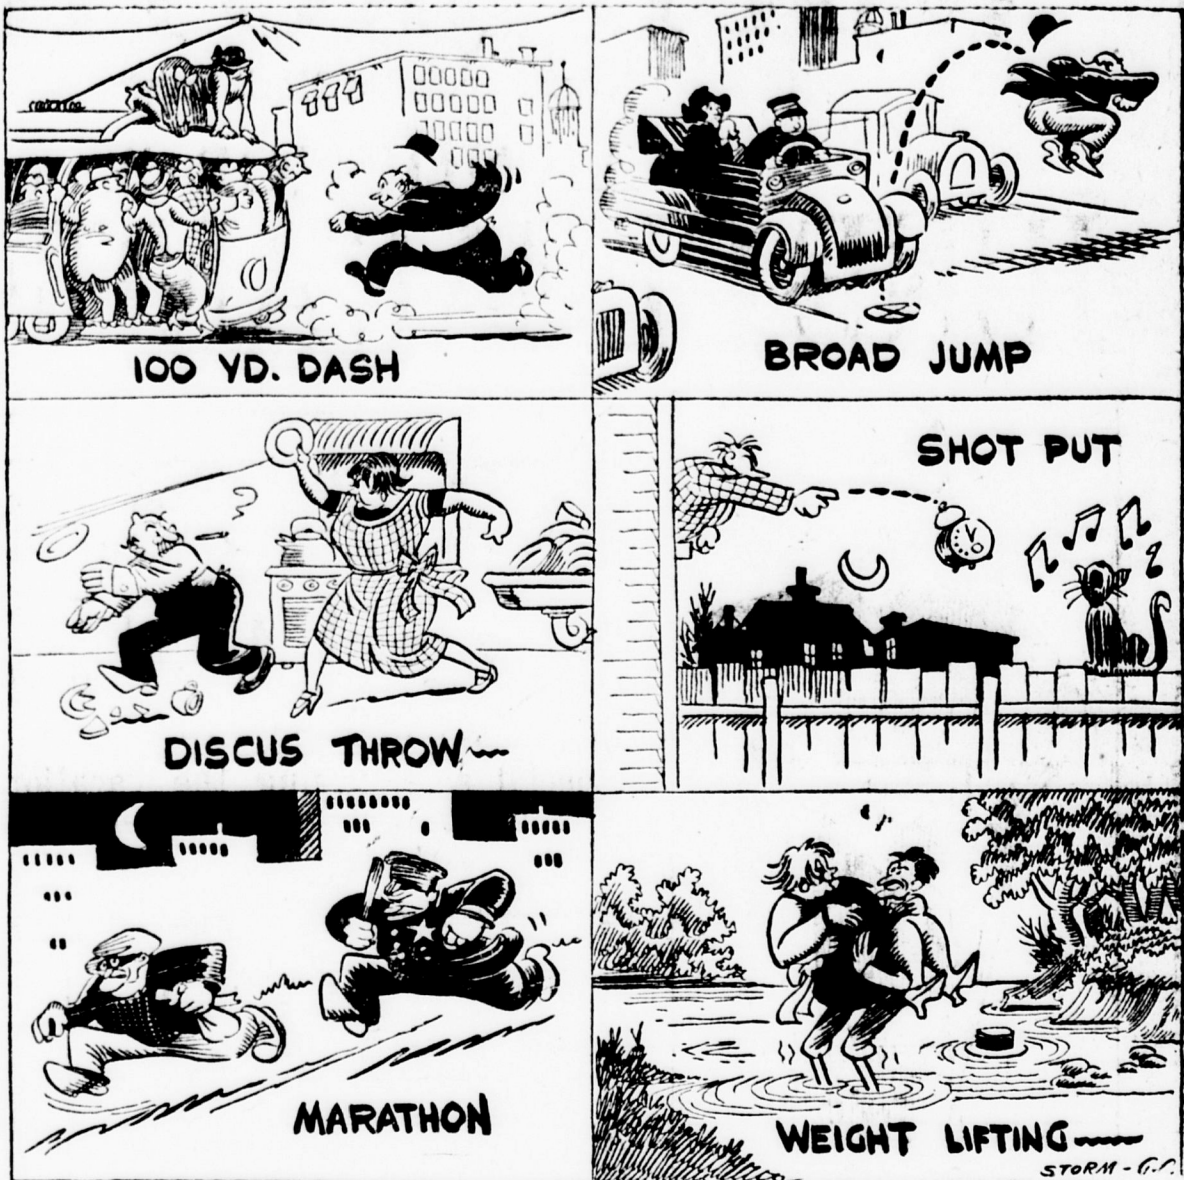

Fate has a capricious way of lifting you to the peaks one day, and slamming you to the depths the next.

Old Granddaddy Black knows this. The Californian came within a stroke of tying Sarazen for the open championship at Skokie two years ago.

Like Cruikshank, Black was comparatively unknown before the tournament. Overnight he became nationally famous. A year passed and he reported at Inwood to try again.

This time the galleries followed him, but not for long. The old man had lost his stroke, and was floundering in the put. Cruikshank may do better in the Detroit meet. At least he has youth on his side and the optimism of youth is not easily crushed.

WALKER KEEPS HIS TITLE

Stages Furious Battle With Lew Tendler

Philadelphia, June 3.—Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, successfully defended his title against Lew Tendler, Philadelphia, southpaw, in a furious ten round bout in the National League ball park here last night. The challenger put up a strong fight against the youthful champion, but was outpunched in the in-fighting.

The southpaw's long left bothered Walker to some extent but when the champion got inside the challenger's guard he scored heavily to Tendler's body. The Philadelphia was game, however. He met Walker at every turn, blow for blow, carried the fight to the champion during the later rounds and even forced the champion to cover by the fury of his attack.

Walker fought a crafty fight. He rushed Tendler, swinging with both hands while Tendler boxed for an opening to clinch. The challenger started off a bit awed by the championship aspect of the bout, but gained courage as the battle progressed.

MR. STRUNK WITH MACK FOUR TIMES

Philadelphia, June 3.—Selden does a big leaguer play four separate engagements with the same team.

Such is the experience of Amos Strunk, veteran outfielder, recently signed by Connie Mack to an athletic contract.

Connie Mack discovered Strunk back in 1909, and apparently he means to help him stick around as a major leaguer after all other leaguers are positive he is through.

Strunk played a very short engagement with the Athletics in 1909, but lacked experience and was turned over to the Milwaukee club of the American Association.

A year in that organization convinced Mack that Strunk was of

All North Dakota high school athletes entered in the national inter-scholastic field meet at Chicago made a good showing.

He finished sixth. The winner ran the distance in 4 minutes 30 3-5 seconds, tying the national record. Jimmy McCracken of Grand Forks finished first in a preliminary heat of the 100-yard dash, making it in 10 2-5 seconds, but was defeated in the semi-finals. Ted Fuller failed to qualify in the hurdles, finishing third in his heat. Doane of Onkes was sixth in the half mile. Johnson of Pembina heaved the javelin 163 feet, but did not place. Thompson of Devils Lake was eliminated in the pole vault at 11 feet 6 inches.

JAMESTOWN PLAYS HERE

The fast Jamestown semi-professional team will meet the Bismarck Independents here Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Manager George Smith of the local team announced today. He expects a fine article of ball, and is banking on Sorlien, a former college pitcher, to turn down the visitors in the same manner he turned back the Linton team.

Billy Evans Says

A change of pace is a most valuable asset to a major league pitcher. The lively ball now in use places a greater premium than ever on the change of pace. It is almost a necessity for big league success.

Change of pace as applied to a pitcher relates to the ability to mix them up. It is the art of being able to throw a fast of slow ball with exactly the same motion, plus the intelligent use of the curve.

In baseball, change of pace has always been used in relation to the pitcher only.

Manager Lee Fohl, resourceful leader of the Boston Red Sox, comes to bat with a new issue on this feature of the game.

Fohl's idea is that a change of pace refers as much to the catcher as the pitcher. He says the great catchers are those with a change of pace.

The Boston manager in making such a statement has reference to catchers in working on their batters.

"Many big league catchers adopt exactly the same methods on me every time I come to bat. The name of the opposing catcher is usually a guide to me as to style pitching I may expect."

Recently in an article telling of his success as a batter, Harry Heilmann, champion batter of the American League made much a statement.

Heilmann went even further, and said he believed the increase in hitting in both major leagues might be traced to this one fault. Said that he believed a great many pitchers would be more effective if they used more initiative in pitching to the batters rather than rely entirely on their catcher's judgment.

Lee Fohl's theory as to a catcher's change of pace has a direct relation to Heilmann's theory on the increase in batting.

"A pitcher's effectiveness depends in a large measure on the way he lets the batter get a line on his system. It is wisdom at times to pitch right into the batter's groove. The brainy catcher often gambles with the unexpected."

There you have Lee Fohl's theory on good catching. Because Steve

WINS PROMOTION IN FOUR WEEKS

His training at Dakota Business College, Fargo, paid quick dividends to Frank Kouba. Less than a month after being employed by the First National Bank, White Rock, S. D., he was advanced to assistant cashier.

Some 218 former "Dakota" students have become bank officers. Pupils learn business methods at school by actual practice, get better positions and rise rapidly. Hattie Ball is the 6th "Dakota" engaged by the new Fairmont Creamery Co.

Watch these success stories each week, compare schools and "Follow the successful."

O'Neill always works along those lines the Boston manager rates him as one of the greatest catchers in the majors.

"There is no figuring the pitcher with O'Neill catching," says Fohl. "He mixes them up and never adopts a set method in working on a batter. Of course he gives consideration to the strength and weakness of the batter, yet doesn't adopt such a system as a set style of catching."

"It may be two or three curves the first time a star batter faces the pitcher with O'Neill catching. On his second trip to the plate it may be nothing but fast ones for the same batter."

"Inability to figure a catcher often makes the pitcher."

Without question the Boston Red Sox pitchers have taken on increased effectiveness under O'Neill's guidance. Perhaps the catcher's change-of-pace theory of Manager Fohl explains it.

HARVEY GIVES THE CAPITAL NEW PROBLEM

Harvey, Former Ambassador, Will Take Charge of the Washington Post

By Harry B. Hunt
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 3.—Washington has received a journalistic jolt. It's in a daze waiting for the fireworks to start.

All of which is the result of the announcement that George Harvey of Peacham, Vt., picker of presidents and ex-ambassador to the Court of St. James, will take charge on June 1, as "editorial director" of the Washington Post.

The Post is owned by E. B. McLean, whose private wires and telegrams were the subject of considerable interest during one stage of the Fall-Sinclair oil lease investigation.

The question that is puzzling official Washington, and which politicians would give a lot know, is: "What will Harvey do with McLean's newspaper?"

The attitude of both McLean and Harvey toward the Coolidge candidacy is a topic for endless speculation. McLean was one of the closest friends of President Harding, but it has been intimated there is little love lost on either side between Coolidge and McLean.

Harding made Harvey ambassador to Great Britain, but Harvey resigned the post shortly after Coolidge entered the White House.

All of which may or may not be significant.

Harvey, as a Democrat, played an active part in putting over Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson for president. Switching to the Republican side, he helped roll up a 7,000-

000 majority for Harding in 1920.

The McLean papers originally were Democratic. Later they were "Independent." During the Harding campaign they took their place as active supporters of the Republican program.

"What'll they do in 1924?" is the present question. The answer, however, is awaited with curiosity rather than trepidation, by both sides.

The probable answer is that George Harvey of Peacham, Vermont, will support Calvin Coolidge of Plymouth, Vermont. Green Mountain boys must stick together.

But from his past record, first with the Springfield Republican and Chicago Daily News, later with the New York World and still later as editor of Harper's Weekly, the North American Review and Harper's Weekly, the only thing certain is that his position is uncertain.

The window dresser had done a good job, and the one perfect peach of a hat in the center stood out like a diamond in a platinum setting.

It was but natural, then, that the dark haired, brown-eyed woman who was passing hesitated, wavered and went inside. She hadn't intended buying a hat that morning, it was evident, but—when a woman sees a hat she likes there's only one answer.

The clerk obligingly brought the hat from the window. It was tried on. Then half a dozen others were examined, but always the customer returned to the first.

"I'll take this one," she said finally, holding out the perfect peach that had first caught her eye. "Do you accept charge accounts?"

"Certainly. What is the name and address?"

"Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, the White House," was the answer.

Which proves that, when it comes to hats, the First Lady is just as susceptible to the lure of millinery as the lowliest of her sisters.

The Little Red Hen

"Puck, puck, puck, pucKAYah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that any "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to advertise the fact.

A duck egg might be just as good but, the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't advertise, and duck eggs have no market.

To be absolutely sure in buying ANY merchandise, stick to the advertised goods. For their manufacturers believe in them and tell you about them daily in the advertising columns of this newspaper, over their signatures.

The duck-egg brands might be just as good but you cannot be sure, if the manufacturers themselves will not admit it!

Read the advertisements regularly. Buy from them. You will know the source of the products, and whom to look to if they don't measure up.

FINDS AUTO STORED IN AN OLD ELEVATOR
Jamestown, N. D., June 3-Several stolen cars have been recovered in and about Jamestown recently indicating that this city may be the headquarters of an amateur gang attempting to carry on this nefarious business.
Sunday, Policeman Harry Briggs while working in the country found a Ford Coupe that was stolen in Jamestown parked in the driveway of the grain elevator at Parkhurst siding. This elevator, it was learned from the manager, had been closed since April 7 and no one had been around it to his knowledge. It was to be opened next week for repairing for full business. The discovery of the car can be blamed to tire trouble. Officer Briggs had a tire go flat on the road near the Parkhurst elevator and went about for a loose bit of board to put under his jack. While peering about for a loose bit of wood he saw the car, a Ford coupe inside and noted its license number. As yet no one has been found that knows, or at least will tell how the car got there. The building was locked and in order to get into the driveway, it was necessary to crawl thru the belt tunnel and up thru a trap door. This, the elevator manager says, would require some knowledge of the elevator but would enable one to open the driveway doors from the inside.

URGE POWER TO TAKE POST OF RESERVE AGENT

Large, N. D., June 3-Strong support throughout North Dakota for the movement begun last week at two bankers meetings in the state in endorsing and recommending favorable consideration for the appointment of J. A. Power of Leonard for the vacancy in the office of federal reserve agent and chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis, caused by the recent death of John H. Rich, is seen today by officials of the North Dakota Bankers association.
A resolution favoring the appointment of Mr. Power adopted at a group bankers meeting at Mandan last week was followed by a similar movement at the next group meeting held at Forman, Thursday, May 29, and warm support of the idea followed among bankers, farmers and others throughout the state.

FINDS AUTO STORED IN AN OLD ELEVATOR

Jamestown, N. D., June 3-Several stolen cars have been recovered and about Jamestown recently indicating that this city may be the headquarters of an amateur gang attempting to carry on this nefarious business. Sunday, Policeman Harry Briggs while autoing in the country found a Ford coupe that was stolen in Jamestown parked in the driveway of the grain elevator at Parkhurst siding. This elevator, it was learned from the manager, had been closed since April 7 and no one had been around it to his knowledge. It was to be opened next week for repairing for full business. The discovery of the car can be blamed to tire trouble. Officer Briggs had a tire go flat on the road near the Parkhurst elevator and went about for a loose bit of board to put under his jack. While peering about for a loose bit of wood he saw the new car, a Ford coupe inside and noted its license

TRADE RECORD OUR CENTRAL AMERICAN NEIGHBORS

They are steadily increasing their purchases of our manufactures and paying for them in their natural products. Since 1910 the interchanges have aggregated $1,000,000,000. Honduras and details of its trade with the United States.

Honduras, our nearest Central American neighbor and just now the center of attention in that section of North America, is a considerable and growing factor in the foreign trade of the United States. With a population of less than one million, it took from us last year over 11 million dollars worth of our products, and has averaged about 11 million dollars per annum during the past 5 years. About 84% of its imports are drawn from the United States and it sends us 90% of its exports. The total trade between Honduras and the United States in the past dozen years has approximated 150 million dollars.

Manufactures, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, formed the bulk of the 35 million dollars worth of merchandise which we have sent to Honduras in the past 5 years, and fruits, coffee, sugar, tropical woods and gums the chief imports, about 30 millions. Cotton goods, boots and shoes, manufactures of iron and steel, railway cars, electrical machinery, medicinal preparations and floor are the principal articles sent to its markets and they are paid for in bananas, coconuts, chicla, sugar, mahogany, luscious logwood and other articles of tropical growth. Bananas are by far its most important export and form over one-third of our big and constantly growing imports of the fruit. Puerto Cortes, its chief Caribbean port, and the center of its banana trade, lies but about 900 miles from our southern coast and is connected by steamship lines with New Orleans, Mobile and New York, and sends to us most of the 12 to 14 million bunches of bananas which Honduras ships to the United States every year. Tegucigalpa, the capital, situated in the western section of the republic, is within about 100 miles of Amalpa, the chief Pacific port of the republic.

These conditions of our commercial relations with Honduras, adds the Trade Record, are typical of the trade with all Central American republics, with an aggregate area less than that of the state of Texas and an aggregate population less than that of the state of Illinois, show a growing disposition to rely on the United States for the merchandise which they import and as a market for their exports, especially since the war which interrupted in considerable degree their trading relations with Europe. Prior to the war, in 1908 for example, they took but 45% of their imports from the United States while in the latest year for which their official reports are available they were taking over 70% of their imports from us. Honduras, as already shown, takes 84% of her imports from the United States. Nicaragua advanced the share of her imports from us from 56% in 1913 to 73% in the latest available year, Panama from 55% to 73%, Salvador from 40% to 62%, Guatemala from 50% to 60%, and Costa Rica from 51% in 1913 to 62% in 1922.

Much of this increase in our trade with Central America is due to the investment of United States capital in that area, for it is chiefly through American investments that the big banana industry along the Caribbean coast has been developed, through the construction of railways, proper housing facilities for those engaged and direct connection with the great markets of the world. Our own imports of bananas, drawn chiefly from Central America have grown from about $5,000,000 value in 1900 to nearly $20,000,000 in 1923.

Washington Defeats Athletics in Americans

Chicago, June 3.—Most of the major league baseball teams were idle yesterday, being en route between various cities.

In the Americans, only Washington and Philadelphia got into action, the Senators winning 8 to 2 behind the veteran Walter Johnson's good pitching. Johnson fanned seven.

In the Nationals New York got a firmer grip on first place, beating Boston, 3 to 0. George Kelly, New York first sacker, scored four runs and hit a home run, a double and a single.

Carey's homer with Cuyler on base in the eighth paved the way for Pittsburgh's 6 to 2 win over St. Louis.

Cruikshank Tackles The Fates Again

Main Thriller at Inwood Not Averse to Starting Anew at Detroit

By Joe Williams

What will Bobby Cruikshank do in this year's open championship? The wee Scot was the main thriller in the clock and matchie assembly at Inwood last summer.

In some respects he was a greater hero than Bobby Jones, the amateur who beat him in the play-off after the two had tied at the end of 18 holes.

Cruikshank came up from where to sit among the great members of the amateur who broke through demanding recognition for the hourglass.

Jones had previously demonstrated his skill and was a proven winner, or at least to the satisfaction of the top.

The pint-size professional, however, was just one of the many starters, a 50 to 1 shot in the tournament calculations.

But as long as golf is played, Cruikshank's smiling faith to the Jones will be remembered, the long, screaming iron shot he played to the home green, and the nine-foot putt that dropped for the needed three on one of the stiffest par four holes in the land.

Cruikshank faced a situation that would have tested the nerves of a Tiger, and came through with an unswerving brilliancy that wrote imperishable golf history.

You haven't read much of Cruikshank since that day. His contributions to competitive golf in the east and the winter tournaments were of minor nature. Was Inwood his big opportunity? Is he destined now to fall back with the drifting mob, whence he came?

Fate has a capricious way of lifting you to the peaks one day, and slinging you to the depths the next.

Oh Granddaddy Black knows this. The Californian came within stroke of being Sarazen for the open championship at Skokie two years ago.

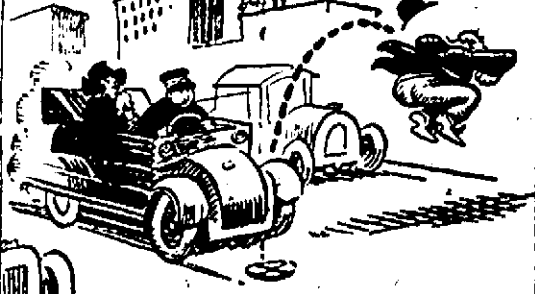

Like Cruikshank, Black was comparatively unknown before the tournament. Overnight he became nationally famous. A year passed and he reported at Inwood to try again.

This time the galleries followed him, but not for long. The old man had lost his stroke and was floundering in the rut. Cruikshank did better in the Detroit meet. At least he has youth on his side and the optimism of youth is not easily crushed.

WALKER KEEPS HIS TITLE

Stages Furious Battle With Lew Tendler

Philadelphia, June 3.—Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, successfully defended his title against Lew Tendler, Philadelphia, southpaw, in a furious ten round bout in the National League ball park here last night. The challenger put up a strong fight against the youthful champion, but was outpunched in the in-fighting.

The southpaw's long left bothered Walker to some extent but when the champion got inside the challenger's guard he scored heavily to Tendler's body. The Philadelphian was game, however. He met Walker at every turn, blow for blow, carried the fight to the champion during the later rounds and even forced the champion to cover by the fury of his attack.

Walker fought a crafty fight. He pushed Tendler, swinging with both hands while Tendler hoped for an opening to clinch. The challenger started off a bit awed by the championship aspect of the bout, but gained courage as the battle progressed.

MR. STRUNK WITH MACK FOUR TIMES

Philadelphia, June 3.—Seldom does a big leaguer play four separate engagements with the same team.

Such is the experience of Amos Strunk, veteran outfielder, recently signed by the Athletics to an Athletics contract.

Strunk, who has played for the Athletics, the Yankees, the Red Sox, the Browns, and the Cubs, is now in his fourth game with the Athletics.

Strunk, who is 34 years old, is a veteran of the big leagues. He has played for the Athletics, the Yankees, the Red Sox, the Browns, and the Cubs.

Woman Bowler Cracks Maples For 297 Count

BLANCHE LITTLEFIELD HUSK

One of the best women bowlers in America is Miss Blanche Littlefield Husk, who was a prominent performer in the recent Metropolitan championship. Mrs. Husk set what is believed to be a record for women bowlers when she scored a total of 297 in one game, just three plays shy of perfection.

N. D. BOYS SHOW WELL IN BIG TRACK CONTEST

All North Dakota high school athletes entered in the national interscholastic field meet at Chicago made a good showing.

Newhall Gundlach was the only North Dakota entry to score points. He was third in the 440-yard dash, debuting in 51.3-5 seconds by the winner, Leslie Jermoe of Warwick run a fine race in the mile. He finished six. The winner ran the distance in 1 minute 39.3-5 seconds, tying the national record. Jimmy McCracken of Grand Forks finished first in a preliminary heat of the 100-yard dash, making it in 10.2-5 seconds, but was defeated in the semi-finals. Ted Fuller failed to qualify in the hurdles, finishing third in his heat. Deane of Oakes was sixth in the half mile. Johnson of Pembina heaved the javelin 163 feet, but did not place. Thompson of Devils Lake was eliminated in the pole vault at 11 feet 6 inches.

Johnny Dundee Beats Vicentini

New York, June 3.—Johnny Dundee, prizefighter veteran of more than 100 ring battles, defeated Luis Vicentini, sensational Chilean lightweight, last night at Madison Square Garden and abruptly checked the march of the young South American toward a title fight with Bobby Leonard.

Dundee, calling on all his experience and speed to outgeneral his aggressive, hard hitting opponent, gained the judges' verdict after a closely fought but unexciting 12 round contest before a crowd of nearly 7,444 that paid $19,000 to witness it.

JAMESTOWN PLAYS HERE

The fast Jamestown semi-professional team will meet the Bismarck Independents here Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Manager George Smith of the local team announced today. He expects a fine article of ball, and is banking on Scollen, a former college pitcher, to turn down the visitors in the same manner he turned back the Linton team.

Billy Evans Says

A change of pace is a most valuable asset to a major league pitcher. The lively ball now in use places a greater premium than ever on the change of pace. It is almost a necessity for big league success.

Change of pace as applied to a pitcher relates to the ability to mix them up. It is the art of being able to throw a fast or slow ball with exactly the same motion, plus the intelligent use of the curve.

In baseball, change of pace has always been used in relation to the pitcher only.

Manager Lee Fohl, resourceful leader of the Boston Red Sox, comes to bat with a new issue on this feature of the game.

Fohl's idea is that a change of pace refers as much to the catcher as the pitcher. He says the great catchers are those with a change of pace.

The Boston manager in making such a statement has reference to catchers in working on their batters.

"Many big league catchers adopt exactly the same methods on me every time I come to bat. The name of the opposing catcher is usually a guide to me as to style pitching I may expect."

Recently in an article telling of his success as a batter, Harry Heilmann, champion batter of the American League made such a statement.

Heilmann went even further, and said he believed the increase in hitting in both major leagues might be traced to this one fault. Said that he believed a great many pitchers would be more effective if they used more initiative in pitching to the batters rather than rely entirely on their catcher's judgment.

Lee Fohl's theory as to a catcher's change of pace has a direct relation to Heilmann's theory of the increase in batting.

"A pitcher's effectiveness depends in a large measure on the way he lets the batter get a line on his system. It is wisdom at times to pitch right into the batter's groove. The brainy catcher often gambles with the unexpected."

There you have Lee Fohl's theory on good catching. Because Steve

WINS PROMOTION IN FOUR WEEKS

His training at Dakota Business College, Fargo, paid quick dividends to Frank Koubas. Less than a month after being employed by the First National Bank, White Rock, S. D., he was advanced to assistant cashier.

Some 213 former "Dakota" students have become bank officers. Koubas learns business method at school by actual practice, get better positions and rise rapidly. He is the 6th "Dakota" engaged by the new Fairmont Creamery Co.

Watch these success stories each week, compare schools and follow the successful.

O'Neill always works along those lines the Boston manager rates him as one of the greatest catchers in the major.

"There is no figuring the pitcher with O'Neill catching," says Fohl. "He mixes them up and never adopts a set method in working on a batter. Of course he gives consideration to the strength and weakness of the batter, yet doesn't adopt such a system as a set style of catching."

It may be two or three curves the first time a star batter faces the pitcher with O'Neill catching. On his second trip to the plate it may be nothing but fast ones for the same batter.

"Inability to figure a catcher often makes the pitcher."

Without question the Boston Red Sox pitchers have taken on increased effectiveness under O'Neill's guidance. Perhaps the catcher's change-of-pace theory of Manager Fohl explains it.

HARVEY GIVES THE CAPITAL NEW PROBLEM

Harvey, Former Ambassador, Will Take Charge of the Washington Post

By Harry B. Hunt
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 3.—Washington has received a journalistic jolt. It's in a daze waiting for the fireworks to start.

All of which is the result of the announcement that George Harvey of Peacham, Vt., picker of presidents and ex-ambassador to the Court of St. James, will take charge on June 1, as "editorial director" of the Washington Post.

The Post is owned by E. B. McLean, whose private wires and telegrams were the subject of considerable interest during one stage of the Fall-Sinclair oil lease investigation.

The question that is puzzling official Washington, and which politicians would give a lot know, is: "What will Harvey do with McLean's newspaper?"

The attitude of both McLean and Harvey toward the Coolidge candidacy is a topic for endless speculation. McLean was one of the closest friends of President Harding, but it has been intimated there is little love lost on either side between Coolidge and McLean.

Harding made Harvey ambassador to Great Britain, but Harvey resigned the post shortly after Coolidge entered the White House.

All of which may or may not be significant.

Harvey, as a Democrat, played an active part in putting over Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson for president. Switching to the Republican side, he helped roll up a 7,000-ood majority for Harding in 1920.

The McLean papers originally were Democratic. Later they were "Independent." During the Harding campaign they took their place as active supporters of the Republican program.

"What'll they do in 1924?" is the present question. The answer, however, is awaited with curiosity rather than trepidation by both sides.

It was but natural, then, that the dark haired, brown-eyed woman who was passing hesitated, wavered and went inside. She hadn't intended buying a hat that morning, it was evident, but when a woman sees a hat she likes there's only one answer.

The probable answer is that George Harvey of Peacham, Vermont, will support Calvin Coolidge of Plymouth, Vermont. Green Mountain boys must stick together. But from his past record, first with the Springfield Republican and

The clerk obligingly brought the hat from the window. It was tried on. Then half a dozen others were examined, but always the customer returned to the first.

"I'll take this one," she said finally, holding out the perfect peach that had first caught her eye. "Do you accept charge accounts?"

"Certainly. What is the name and address?"

"Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, the White House," was the answer.

Which proves that, when it comes to hats, the First Lady is just as susceptible to the lure of millinery as the lowliest of her sisters.

The Little Red Hen

"Puck, puck, puck, pucKAYah," cackles the little red hen, as she steps off the warm nest, broadcasting to the barnyard that she has just laid a fine, fresh egg. She makes a product that any "manufacturer" might be proud of, and doesn't hesitate to advertise the fact.

A duck egg might be just as good but, the duck evidently doesn't think so. She doesn't advertise, and duck eggs have no market.

To be absolutely sure in buying ANY merchandise, stick to the advertised goods. For their manufacturers believe in them and tell you about them daily in the advertising columns of this newspaper, over their signatures.

The duck-egg brands might be just as good but you cannot be sure, if the manufacturers themselves will not admit it!

Read the advertisements regularly. Buy from them. You will know the source of the products, and whom to look to if they don't measure up.
